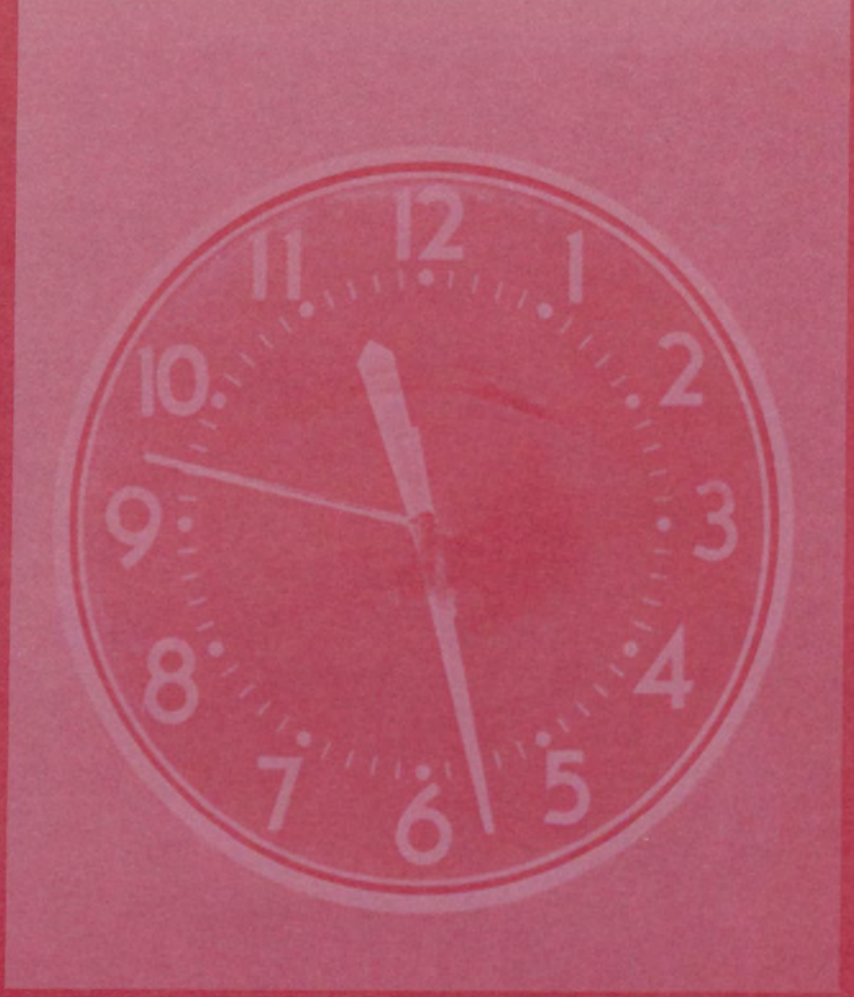
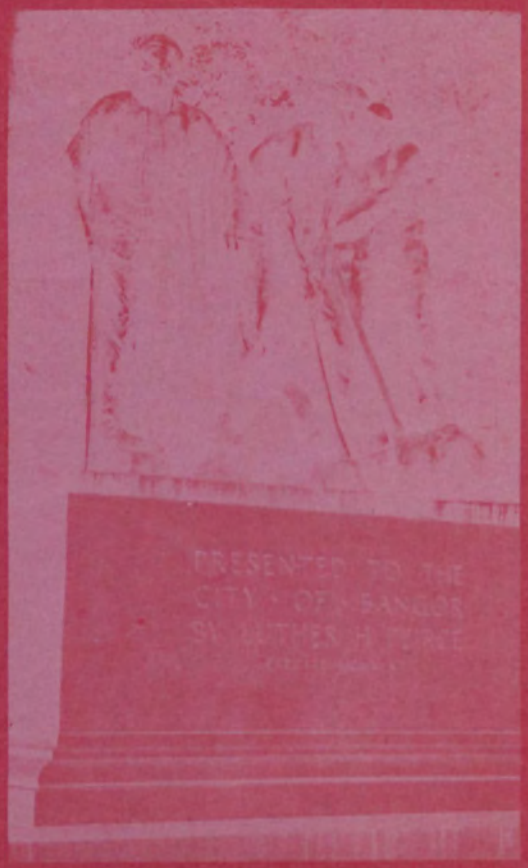
STORYBOOK



Once upon a time . . .

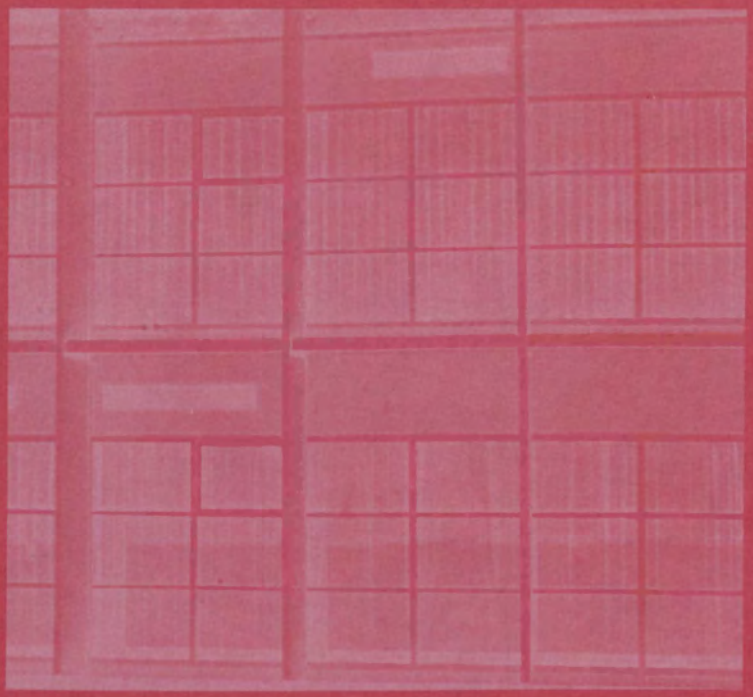
There was a little city named Bangor, Maine

photos page
2-Conti
3-Mogul

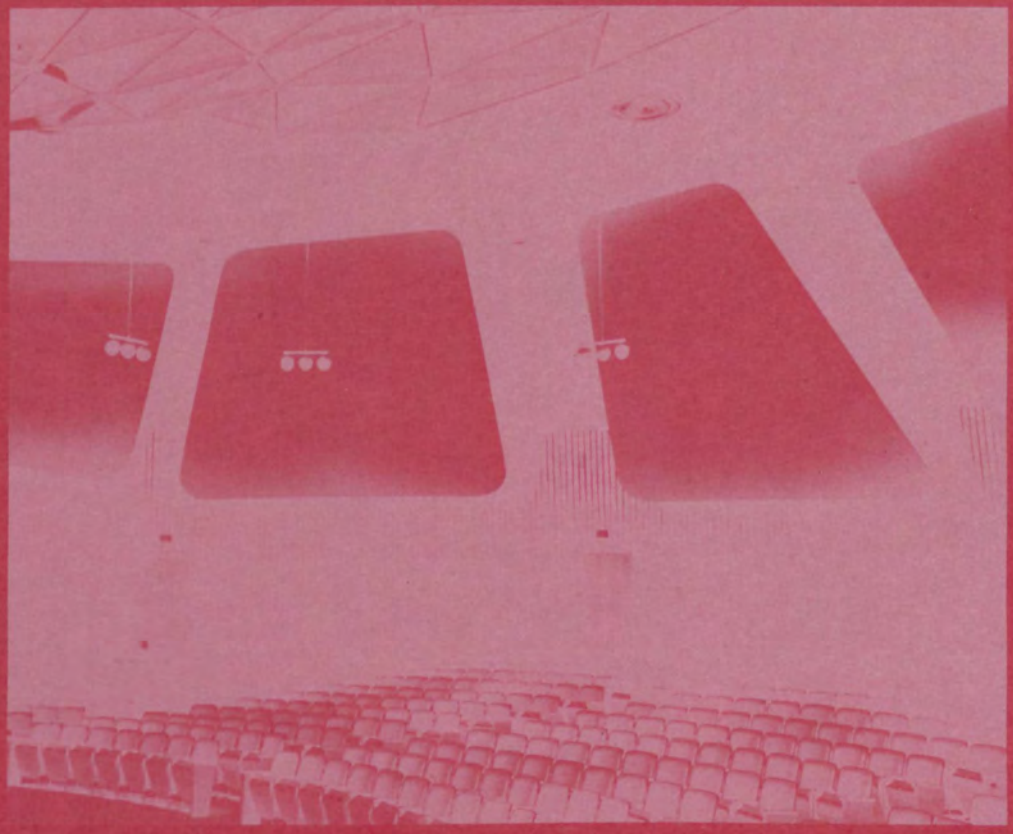


In this little city

photos-Mogul

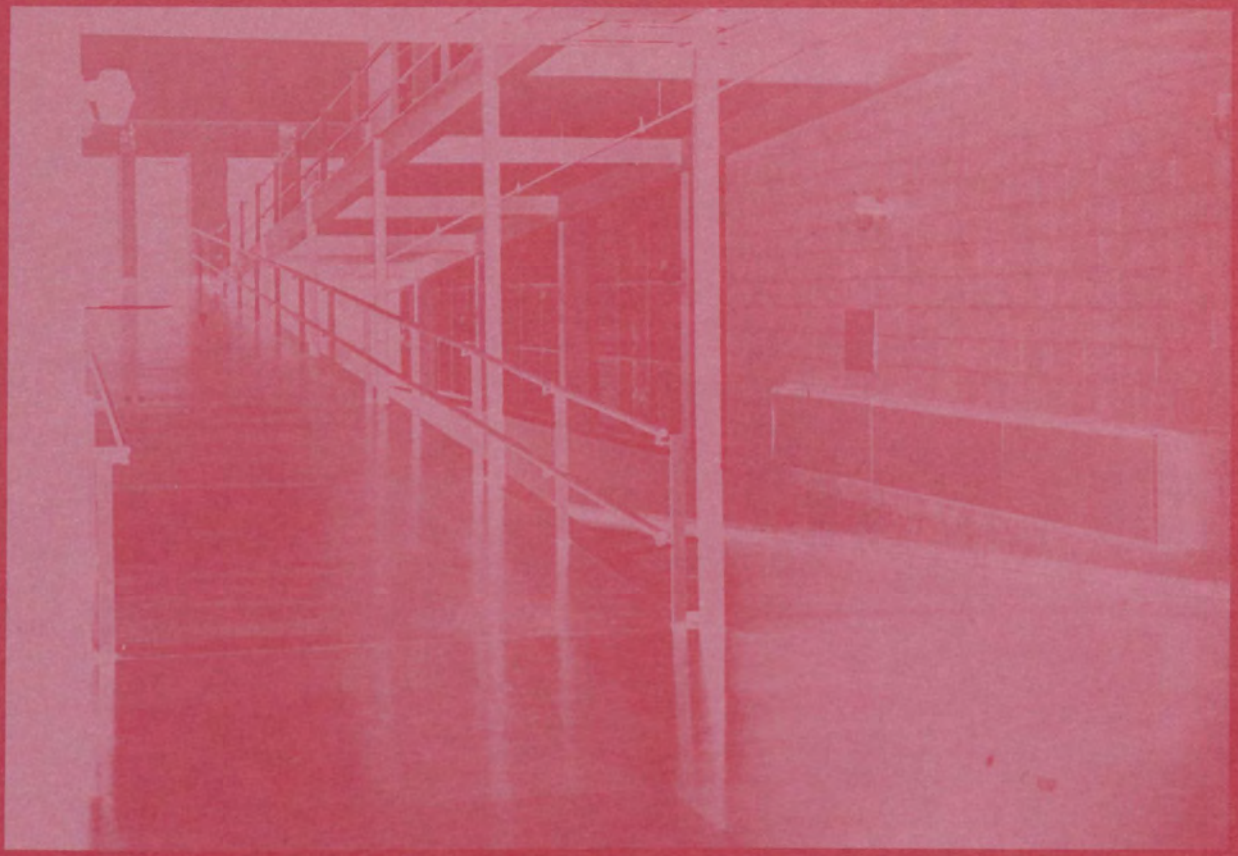


There was a big empty school

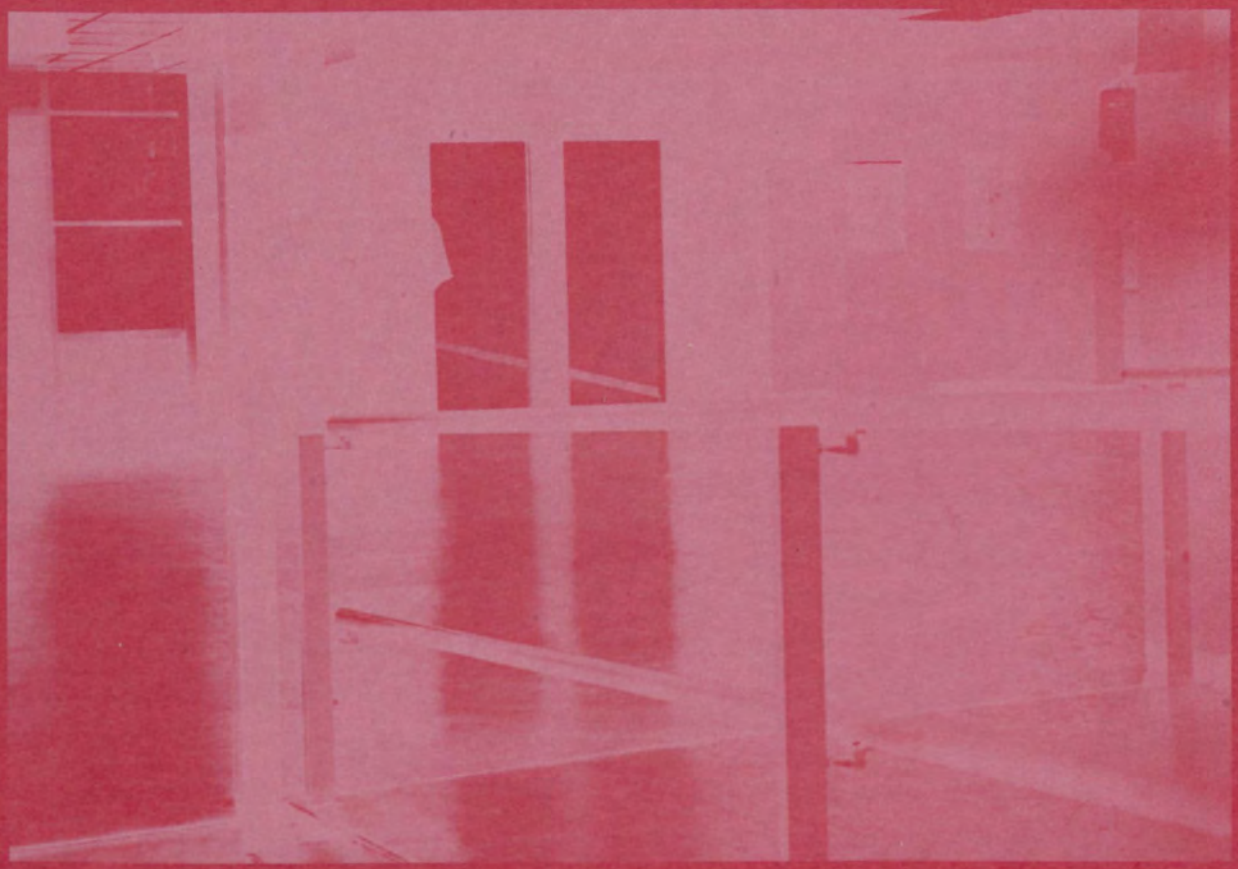


Up until September fourth

photo
Mogul



It was very quiet in this school



And then

All of a sudden . . .

People!

photo-Conti

Not people here and there

But every-where

After a morning's hard work, now it's . . .

TIME FOR LUNCH!

Finally the end of Mod 15 arrives and the people slowly depart

Now there is a big empty school . . .
Until tomorrow!

MR. JONES —

The 1975 Bangor High School Oracle Staff dedicates its yearbook to you. We extend our thanks for your help in the school and school activities. Without your help where would the Student Council be, how would we know our Nation's History, and who would remind us that

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Business courses offer the students a chance to develop not only the skills and the proper attitudes needed to attain success in the business world, but also a deep sense of self-reliance, self-discipline, and responsibility. A variety of courses are being offered this year with the most of them at full capacity. A new course, BEAP (Business Educational Apprentice Program) was tried last year and proved to be very successful. This year, the Office Practice course open to both girls and boys, is a regular course in the department. This class along with the others enables a business-oriented student to continue these interests after graduation.

There are many exciting co-ed courses offered in the Home Economics department. Some of the courses offered are Foods, Clothing, Housing, Interior Decorating, Marriage and Family, Personal Awareness, and an exciting new course offered for the first time, Creative Stitchery. FOREIGN LANGUAGES

A variety of languages at several levels are taught at Bangor High School. Walking through the halls of the foreign language wing, one might hear the voices of students speaking German, Latin, Spanish, and French in varying levels of proficiency. One might almost imagine himself in the center of Europe rather than in Bangor High School.

Few changes have been made in the Math Department this year. The teaching staff has remained basically the same as last year's, as have the courses offered to students. These courses range from first year Algebra to more advanced courses such as Advanced Pre-College Math and Calculus. One can follow the series of math courses offered at Bangor right up to the college level.

HEALTH, FITNESS, AND RECREATION

The Health, Fitness, And Recreation program has many activities from which to choose. During one half of the year, senior students study several community-related health problems through various projects. During the other half of the year, they participate in some sort of recreational sport. Juniors and sophomores take part in various activities throughout the whole year. Even teachers at times enjoy the variety of co-educational, recreational, and team sports which are offered.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

The Science Department probably has the most widely varied choice of activities of any department in the High School. Classes range upward from Biology I, the basic course from which one usually proceeds to the more advanced classes such as Chemistry II and Physics. While science, like any other subject, is not all fun, there are still outings such as the Biology II field trip to look forward to.

VOCATIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE

Vocational Work Experience is a course designed for students who are planning to work directly after graduation. The courses offer credit toward graduation, but more important, allow for work experience. As juniors and seniors, students can combine employment with school, giving students the advantage of a year's experience in addition to a high school education.
