This record depicts, historically, the personnel and some of the training activities of the men of the 37th Division, U. S. A.

The many and great demands made upon the free time of the personnel together with attendance at Service Schools away from the post has made it impossible to show photographs of all the men. Accordingly, it was necessary to picture those actually available at the time data for this History were compiled.

C

HEADQUARTERS, THIRTY-SEVENTH DIVISION
OFFICE OF

The Commanding General

CAMP SHELBY,
MISSISSIPPI

REFER TO

To the Officers and Enlisted Men of the Thirty-Seventh Division.

When, less than a year ago, Ohio's 37th Division was called into Federal Service, it faced an immediate and urgent problem. Without the benefit of extensive prior experience and without the precedent of a similar peace-time situation in the United States, the division was expected by the nation to join the vanguard of American military units preparing for the defense of the hemisphere, and to do so with speed, efficiency and thoroughness.

Although some types of equipment and some details of organization were not available in finished form, the 37th plunged into its task with a zeal and spirit that has made me tremendously proud. In the months since last October the division has become one of the crack units in the Army of the United States.

My personal satisfaction and pride are merged with a deep appreciation of the prime factor that has made this achievement possible. That factor is the quality of the 37th's personnel. I realize fully that without the calibre of officers and men composing this division, our fine record would never have been possible. My enthusiasm and confidence for our future work together are immense, for I know how much I can count upon every one of you.

I wish to express my appreciation to the 18,000 real soldiers who compose my command.

Sincerely,

ROBERT S. BEIGHTLER
Major General
Commanding.

HISTORY OF THE THIRTY

Against the rich pageantry of its own brilliant history, the 37th Division stands today as a strong and vital link in Uncle Sam's new defense system, with 18,000 Buckeyes converted into top-notch soldiers under the command of Major General Robert S. Beightler, at Camp Shelby, Mississippi.

Ohio men from the rolling farm country, the dynamic industrial towns, the picturesque shores of Lake Erie, have been welded into a powerful combat force to carry on the glorious traditions of the division which had its origin in the earliest days of the nation.

In sharp contrast with the streamlined, mechanized soldier of today's 37th Division stands a ghostly formation of the men who served in the War of 1812; the doeskin-garbed Indian fighters who formed the earliest Ohio troops to defend their homes against a hostile wilderness; the men who fought with General Wool in the Mexican War; blue-clad soldiers of 1861 to 1864, who battled where the present-day soldier trains; the Rough Riders of the Spanish-American War; the troopers who served on the Mexican border and then moved on to write a heroic chronicle in World War I.

Commanded by the youngest major-general in the army, the men of the all-Ohio 37th Division are writing another page in the colorful history of the organization.

General Beightler, who is a descendant of the famous Commodore Oliver Hazelett Perry, was once a private. He enlisted in the Ohio National Guard in 1911, received his stripes as corporal, sergeant and first sergeant and in March, 1914, an appointment as a second lieutenant of infantry.

He was in active service on the Mexican border in 1916, and following demobilization in March, 1917, was promoted to first lieutenant the following July, re-entering the Federal service for World War duty. He served with the 166th Infantry, Ohio's contribution to the Rainbow Division, and saw that organization battle its way into the pages of enduring glory.

During the post-war years, he rose to the rank of major, colonel, and in August, 1940, became brigadier general of the line. Two months later he was appointed major general, assumed command of the 37th Division at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, where he has worked incessantly to build an outstanding organization.

The regimental flags of the 37th are rich in fame and glorious in accomplishments, but the men who followed them wrote an even more rich and glorious chapter in American history.

One of the most brilliant pages of the 37th Division's history is the story of the 73rd Infantry Brigade, now under the command of Brigadier General L. S. Connelly. Its record includes the names of 50 officers and men who received citations and decorations for outstanding acts of bravery during the World War. The capture of Montfaucon in the Argonne was also credited to the 73rd Infantry Brigade.

The brigade is composed of the 145th Infantry Regiment, commanded by Colonel Luke P. Wolfford, and the 148th Infantry Regiment, under the command of Colonel S. A. Baxter. These two regiments proudly show many battle streamers on their colors, won during the World War, when their guns reverberated in various sectors of the French front.

One of the most noteworthy feats of the war was accomplished by the 148th Infantry. The advance of the American forces in Belgium had been held up at the German-controlled Scheldt river. Both Brigadier General Marlin and Brigadier General Connelly were battalion commanders at the time, with the rank of major. Despite the murderous machine-gun fire of the Germans, Major Marlin forced a crossing of the Scheldt by felling trees and erecting a makeshift bridge. He was supported by the battalion commanded by Major Connelly.

The crossing was a complete success and enabled the American forces to advance according to plans.

Another colorful unit of the 37th Division is the 74th Infantry Brigade, led by Brig. Gen. William

SEVENTH DIVISION

Marlin, which includes the 147th Infantry Regiment, commanded by Colonel John A. Blount, and the 166th Infantry, under the command of Colonel Herman C. Doellinger.

In the grueling battles of the World War, the 147th carried its colors in Lorraine, in the bloody Meuse-Argonne, and at Ypres-Lys.

General Beightler served with the 166th Infantry, which was Ohio's contribution to the Rainbow Division. For 18 arduous months, the 166th battled at the Champagne-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne, Lorraine and Champagne. In sweat and blood the regiment wrote one of the most brilliant records in American military history.

The 112th Engineers (Combat) traces its history back to 1837. The regiment, which can lay aside its bridge-building work and become an effective combat unit whenever necessary, was identified as the Cleveland Grays in 1865, when it was accorded the signal honor of acting as honor guard in President Lincoln's funeral procession.

Under the command of Colonel A. E. Henderson, the regiment handles the difficult job of engineering in order that other combat units may advance. During the World War the 112th Engineers won three battle streamers which were added to a fine collection.

The 112th Medical Regiment won the respect of the entire division for the splendid job it did during the World War in handling the sick and wounded.

Big guns of the 37th Division are represented in the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade commanded by Brig. Gen. Leo M. Kreber. The 75 mm guns and the ponderous 155 mm howitzers used by the regiment speak with the voice of authority. The speedy motorized vehicles, so necessary to an artillery unit in these days of lightning warfare, are also included in this regiment.

The 134th, commanded by Colonel Edward T. Kirkendall, is a light artillery regiment; the 135th, commanded by Colonel Robert D. Schmidt, also fires the light 75 mm guns while the 136th, headed by Colonel Kenneth Cooper, blasts away with the medium 155 howitzers.

During the World War, these regiments were separated from the 37th Division in France but blazed a pathway to fame supporting French troops at the Baccarat sector, Meuse-Argonne, Ypres-Lys and other historical battles.

One of the most vital divisional units is that of the 112th Quartermaster Regiment, commanded by Colonel Stanley Wolfe. Soldiers of the quartermaster regiment are responsible for supplies, transportation, countless pieces of equipment, etc. Although they do not engage in actual combat, the Army would soon be helpless without them.

The Special Troops service the divisional headquarters and include the Headquarters Company, Detachment, Ordnance, Signal Companies and the Military Police Co.

The 37th Division was called into service on October 16, 1940, under the command of General Beightler. Ordered to Camp Shelby, the division started the long, arduous task of building a strong combat force. A few months later, the first selectees arrived to receive their training under provisions of the Selective Service Act.

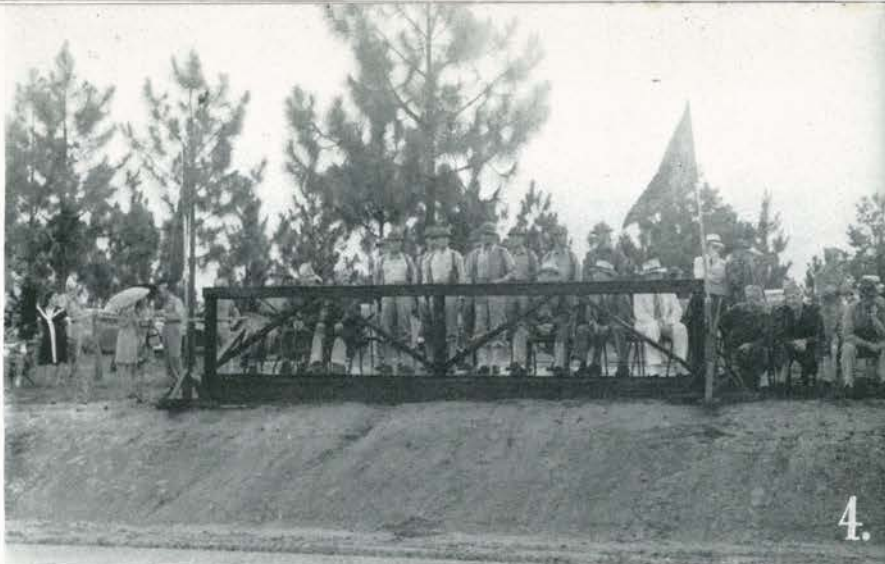

With their basic training completed, the Ohio troops were ready for field work, and in June, 1941, moved to Louisiana for four weeks of intensive maneuvers. In August and September the 37th Division joined other units of the Third Army in the most extensive peacetime maneuvers in our country's history to battle over the sometimes hot-and-dry, sometimes wet-and-swampy stretches of Louisiana and Texas.

Concerning the soldiers of the 37th Division, General Beightler has said: "I am proud of the men of my command for the splendid job they have done. They have worked hard, oftentimes under exceedingly difficult conditions, to achieve their fine records. They can take it.

The Chaplain is the Minister of the Gospel in the army. He serves all the military personnel alike, irrespective of faith or creed. His duties differ from the work of the pastor in civilian life only as they are modified by military conditions. As a staff officer he is his commander's adviser in all things pertaining to the spiritual life of the command.

MISS URTEILE WESTMORELAND

DUTIES OF HOSTESS

In substance, the duties of a Hostess in the Service Club consist of just what the name implies—service—for the men of the Division. In this instance, the word "service" entails many widely diversified and varied duties.

As for an Army itself, for those whose responsibility it is to administer to its recreational needs, there are no regular hours. There are no cut-and-dried patterns to follow—no beginnings and ends—but always a never-ending stream of duties to be taken care of and problems to be dealt with.

There are the problems within the Service Club itself. Hundreds of boys nightly flock through its doors seeking a brief respite from their duties, and for them are provided as many means of enjoyment as possible. Pool tables, playing cards and tables, chess, checkers, music, are provided for all to enjoy, and over all these the Hostess keeps a watchful eye—seeing that all enjoy equal access to them—perhaps dropping a cheerful word to a homesick lad or exchanging friendly greetings here and there.

In addition to the many facilities offered within the Service Club itself, the Hostess extends her duties to include outside recreation. Dances are held periodically for the young men, and before the music plays and the dance floor is filled, many hours have been spent by the Hostess dealing with the thousand small details incidental to every such occasion. Programs must be printed; a location must be arranged for; suitable partners must be invited; transportation must be made available. Here too, there is the matter of securing an orchestra. With many bands in camp, care must be exercised to see that no one orchestra is overworked and at the same time none is slighted. To the Hostess goes the responsibility for seeing that all these necessary preparations are taken care of. Social life is maintained—teas are held, impromptu programs, picture shows—and each one brings with it new details and duties to be attended to by the Hostess.

Men are hard on rooms and furniture. Many a housewife has despaired of keeping her home clean because of muddy shoes and soiled clothing. A Hostess is charged with the responsibility of keeping the Service Club spotlessly neat and clean, with hundreds of young men passing through it nightly! Comfortable chairs must be kept comfortable and clean—tables, chairs and desks must be kept in serviceable condition. Another responsibility for the Hostess!

The Service Club performs another function essential to the idea behind its existence. A complete restaurant for soldiers and visitors alike is maintained. Plans for meals must be formulated, menus printed, food ordered, prepared and served. Tables, chairs, linen, utensils—all must be maintained in perfect condition. Supervision of the varied duties involved in the operation of the restaurant is only another one of the manifold duties of the Hostess.

Soldiers cannot go home on their week-ends, and may be away from home for months on end. Consequently, relatives and friends visit them. Where are they housed and made comfortable? Ask the Hostess, who has still another duty in supervising the operation of the Guest House. Here rooms are provided for visitors—every want of the visitor is anticipated and supplied—every convenience offered. In order to maintain a smoothly running Guest House, capable personnel must be provided, registration and time schedules must be watched, rooms must be kept clean and available at all times. Naturally, it falls to the Hostess to see that the many small details are taken care of.

And so it is evident that the Hostess must be an executive, capable of dealing with the thousand problems that confront her daily—but in addition, she must be much more than a mere executive. She is ever-cheerful—willing to cooperate, heedless of long hours—so that the Service Club may function for the best interest of the soldiers of the Division.

As the Chaplain administers to their spiritual needs, the doctor to their physical well-being, so does the Hostess play her part in caring for their mental and recreational welfare. Who is to say that the Hostess of the Service Club is less important than the Chaplain in the pulpit or the nurse in the hospital ward?

DUTIES OF LIBRARIAN

Perhaps one of the busiest persons in an Army camp not actively engaged in the Service is the librarian. Upon cursory examination, it would seem that a soldier has neither the time nor the inclination to read books, but a single glance into the library will dispell all such notions.

Here the librarian administers to the mental relaxation and cultural needs of the soldier. Her duties are many and varied. Books are meant to be read, and unless they please those for whom they are intended, they are of no value. To the librarian goes the responsibility of securing books—not just any books—but those that will meet with the approval of the men to whom they will ultimately go. In addition to popular books, western, mystery, adventure, there are also non-fictional books and technical manuals available. Ordering books to please the tastes of over 18,000 men is in itself quite a task.

However, merely ordering books is only one small detail in the daily routine of the librarian. Libraries will not run themselves, and it is the duty of the librarian to see that it is operated smoothly and efficiently. Books must be catalogued, sorted, arranged, circulated, rented out, refilled when returned.

Naturally, the librarian is capable of being in only one place at one time, and so it is necessary that sufficient personnel to handle the routine details be supplied. The training and supervision of this personnel is all done by the librarian.

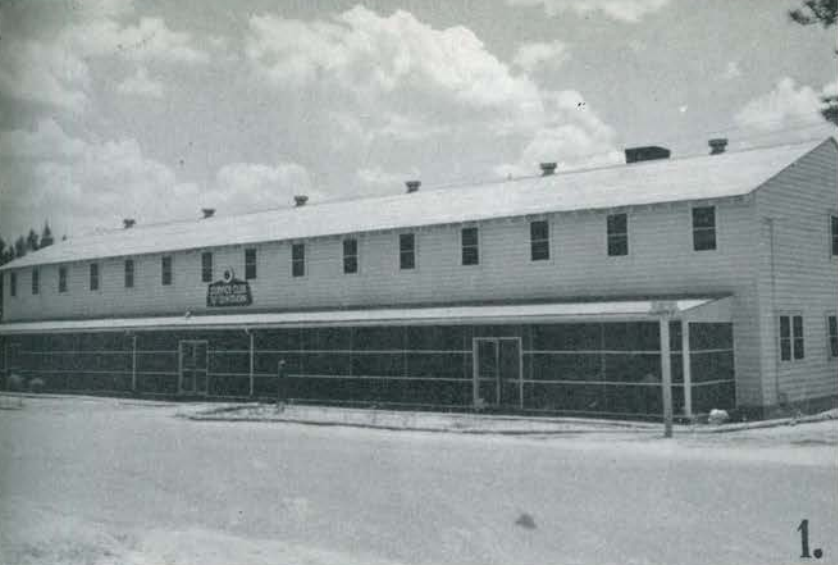

Any good library is not worthy of the name unless it provides more than just books—and an Army camp boasts of a library equal to, or better than, many in civilian life—and it is to the librarian that the credit is due. Each Army camp has within its ranks boys from all sections of the country—and so the librarian sees to it that home-town newspapers are available for their enjoyment and benefit. Popular magazines and periodicals are supplied for short-time reading. Seeing to it that books, magazines, and newspapers are constantly and properly circulated among 18,000 men provides a full-time job for the librarian, and she is still not finished!

What about the library itself? Here the librarian turns magician, and transforms an Army building—plain and bare—into a quiet, restful, modern, well-equipped library. Comfortable chairs, reading tables and lamps, writing desks, all are the responsibility of the librarian—who, by the magic of hard work and never-ending effort, has made this possible.

It has been said that "an Army marches on its stomach." Can this be construed to mean that the soldier needs "food for thought"? The librarian thinks so—and 18,000 grateful soldiers agree with her.

MEDICAL DETACHMENT

SPECIAL TROOPS

37th DIVISION

History

With the organization in 1922 of the Special Troops, Ohio Thirty-seventh Division, Ohio National Guard, and under an original allotment received from the Federal government, the Medical Department Detachment was organized at Circleville, Ohio.

Captain Austin W. Holman was made commanding officer and Federal recognition given May 24, 1922. Capt. Lloyd Jonnes served as junior officer. After the resignation of Captain Holman, Captain Jonnes became commanding officer of the unit February 22, 1932, and First Lieutenant Charles C. Beale became junior officer March 1, 1932.

Lieutenant Beale later resigned his position and it was filled on February 12, 1934, by First Lieutenant Donald L. Butterfield. Upon his resignation Lieutenant Ezra R. Austin became junior officer April 15, 1934. When Captain Jonnes resigned his position in April, 1935, Lieutenant Austin became commanding officer of the Detachment. The position of junior officer was filled by First Lieutenant Vermont D. Kerns on March 3, 1936. On April 1, 1937, Lieutenant Kerns became commanding officer of the unit.

When Headquarters Detachment, Special Troops, was moved to Columbus in January, 1938, Major Simon P. Dunkle felt that a medical officer for Special Troops would facilitate medical aid for the units in Columbus. Consequently, on January 18, 1938, First Lieutenant Anthony Ruppertsberg, Jr., was transferred from the O. R. C. to become junior officer of Medical Detachment, Special Troops.

On June 1, 1938, Lieutenant Ruppertsberg was made a Captain and became commander of the unit, with Lieutenant Kerns filling the position of junior officer. The enlisted strength of the unit was changed this year from fifteen to eighteen.

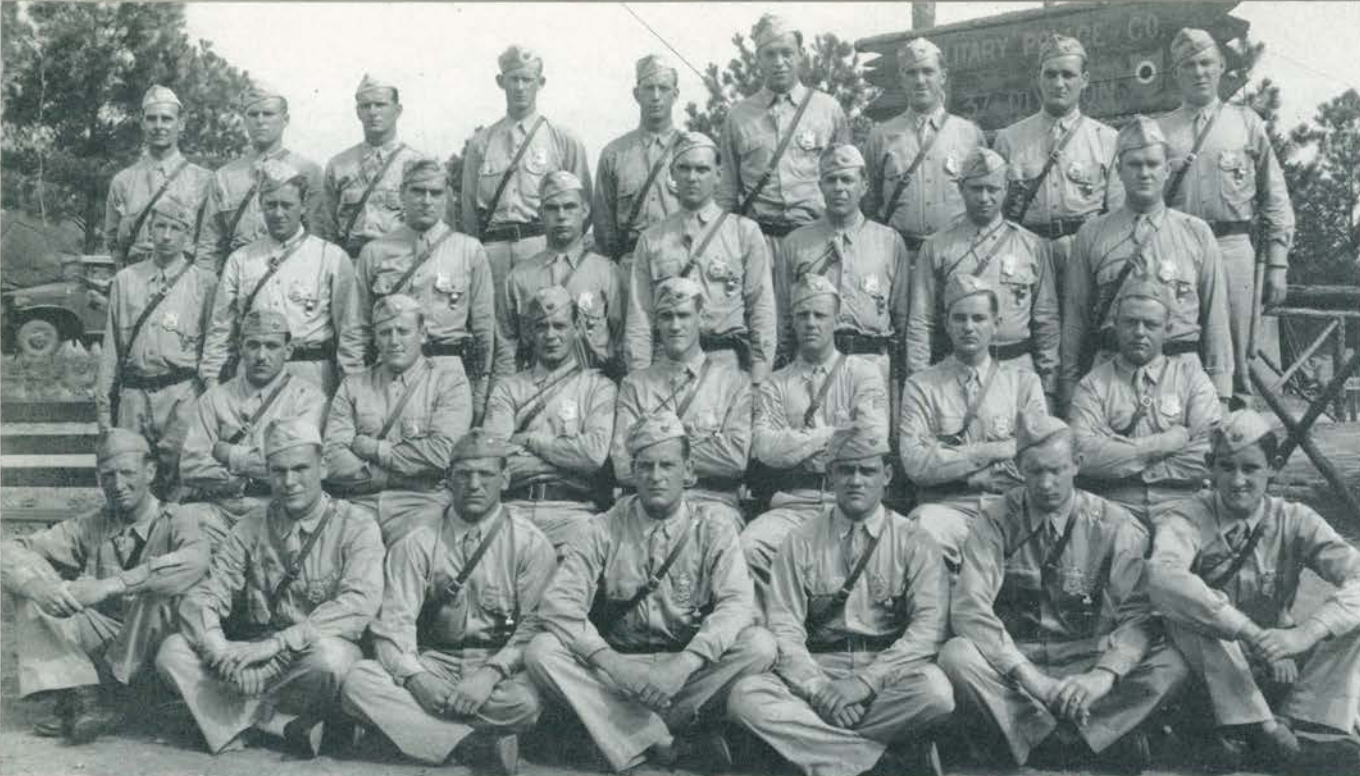

On Jan. 20, 1939, Lieutenant Kerns resigned and First Lieutenant Carr E. Dix filled the vacancy. On May 15, 1939, Lieutenant Dix transferred to the 112th Medical Regiment and First Lieutenant Joseph A. Ridgeway replaced him.

On July 24, 1940, Captain Ruppertsberg was transferred to the 136th Field Artillery Medical Detachment, being promoted to the grade of Major and made Regimental Surgeon. 1st Lt. Ridgeway became commanding officer of the Medical Detachment and was promoted to the grade of Captain.

On October 15, 1940, the detachment was reduced to four men and inducted into Federal service and departed for Camp Shelby, Miss., to take up its duties. In January, 1941, its quota was again changed to 14 men and three officers. Upon the arrival of the Selective Service men the vacancies were filled. Capt. Donald J. Weber, DC-ORC, and 1st Lt. William A. Chainski, MC-ORC, were assigned for one year's active duty with the organization.

History

The Thirty-seventh Military Police Company, Thirty-seventh Division, Ohio National Guard, was first organized in 1924 as the 112th Motorcycle Company, with First Lieutenant Estle O. Stroube commanding and Second Lieutenant John D. Hagerty second in command. The Company attended the 1925, 1926 and 1927 summer training camps at Fort Knox, Kentucky. In 1928, the Company made its summer camp at Camp Perry and performed military police duty.

In December, 1928, the Company was redesignated the Thirty-seventh Military Police Company. Lieutenant Stroube was promoted to the rank of Captain and John D. Hagerty became First Lieutenant. In 1930 William A. Maddy was appointed First Lieutenant to succeed Lieutenant Hagerty, retired.

The Company's strength was increased in 1932 to ninety-one enlisted men and the Special Troops Band was made a part of the Military Police Company. In February, 1938, the Band was dropped and the Company strength reduced to seventy-five men. At the same time

Captain John R. Rea became commanding officer, succeeding Captain Stroube, who was transferred to the National Guard Reserve. Lieutenant William C. King took the place of Lieutenant Maddy as second in command.

Each year since 1929 the Company has attended the summer camp at Camp Perry, with the following exceptions: 1936, when the camp was made at Fort Knox, Kentucky, and 1940, when the Company participated in the II Army Maneuvers, policing the entire Division which was assembled in Wisconsin for a period of twenty-one days, from August 11 to August 31, 1940.

The Company mobilized for training, under authority of Presidential Order No. 8551 of September 25, 1940, on October 15, 1940, with the other organizations of Special Troops, Thirty-seventh Division, at the Armory, 7th Ave. and North High Street, Columbus, Ohio. The authorized strength was fifty men but forty-five were inducted on "M" Day with the two officers named above.

By transfer within the Division and the assignment of Selective Service men, the present strength is 185 enlisted men and five officers all on duty with Special Troops, Thirty-seventh Division, Camp Shelby, Mississippi.

112th ORDNANCE COMPANY

SPECIAL TROOPS

37th DIVISION

History

The 112th Ordnance Company, Thirty-seventh Division, Special Troops, was first organized at Chillicothe, Ohio, April 12, 1922, as Headquarters Company, Thirty-seventh Division, Special Troops, and as such continued to function until its conversion into an Ordnance Unit.

On January 1, 1927, this unit was converted to the 112th Ordnance Company, Thirty-seventh Division, Special Troops.

Prior to the World War, Ordnance Service was a function of Army or Corps Troops, and an Ordnance

Unit did not share the daily life of troops within the division. Since the reorganization of the Army following the World War, Ordnance Units were made part of the Division. The duties of this unit include maintenance of all weapons of both the infantry and the artillery, also all track-laying vehicles of the division or attached to the division. This maintenance is both preventative and corrective, the latter particularly to insure that the weapons of the division are kept in a serviceable condition. In order to do this the Ordnance Company is equipped with special vehicles carrying complete mobile shops and stocks of many parts. These shops include a machine shop, welding, small arms repair, artillery and automotive trucks with the appropriate machinery permanently mounted on and driven by the truck.

HISTORY OF THE 73rd INFANTRY BRIGADE

DESCRIPTION: On a pentagon, one point up, argent.

CREST: That for the National Guard of the State of Ohio proper.

The Seventy-third Infantry Brigade had its inception in 1917 at Camp Sheridan, Montgomery, Alabama, the training locale of the Ohio National Guard. Here the 145th Regiment (formerly the old Fifth Infantry) of Cleveland, and the 146th Regiment (formerly the old Eighth Infantry) of Bucyrus were brigaded under the command of Brig. Gen. John C. Speaks.

The Brigade achieved an enviable record during the World War, serving under the successive commands of Brig. Gen. Speaks, Brig. Gen. Charles X. Zimmerman, Col. John N. Pickering, Brig. Gen. John S. Winn, Brig. Gen. William Fassett and Brig. Gen. S. B. Stansberry. More than fifty officers and enlisted men of the Brigade were cited and decorated for outstanding acts of bravery during the War, and it was this Brigade which was credited with the capture of Montfaucon in the Argonne Forest.

Following the war the Seventy-third Brigade, which represents the northern half of the state of Ohio, was reorganized, the 146th Infantry being redesignated the 148th Infantry, with headquarters being assigned to Toledo, and commanded by Brig. Gen. John R. McQuigg from 1921 to 1928, and Brig. Gen. Ludwig S. Conelly from 1929 to date.

Units of this Brigade have seen field service since the war in the Niles riot, the Lorain disaster, the Toledo Auto-Lite riot, the Cincinnati flood, the Warren-Canton steel disorder and disturbances in the mining area.

LUDWIG S. CONELLY
BRIGADIER GENERAL
U. S. A.

COMMANDING THE 73rd INFANTRY BRIGADE

Brig. Gen. Conelly enrolled August, 1903, in the Cleveland Grays, an independent military organization. In June 17, 1916, he was commissioned Captain in the Ohio National Guard, and commanded Company F, 3rd Infantry, on entry into the Federal Service.

He served on the Mexican Border at El Paso and San Elizario in 1916 and 1917, and remained in Federal service and served on guard duty at various stations in southern Ohio in 1917.

He trained with the 37th Division at Montgomery, Alabama, and went overseas June 23, 1918, in command of the 1st Battalion, 148th Infantry, and served in that capacity through all the actions of the Division in France and Belgium. He was commissioned a Major November 1, 1918, and was discharged from Federal service May 7, 1919. Appointed Colonel, 145th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, on July 1, 1920. Appointed Brigadier General of the Line and assigned to command of 73rd Infantry Brigade on January 3, 1929.

He was awarded the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf cluster for wounds received in action September 29, 1918, at Argonne Forest, and October 31, 1918, at Olsene, Belgium. He was also awarded the Silver Star decoration because of citations received from General Pershing and General Farnsworth.

He has been on active service in the Ohio National Guard since the War, attending all training periods and in command of troops in Ohio during disasters and riots. He reentered Federal service, October 15, 1940, and remained in command of the 73rd Infantry Brigade, now in training at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Due to disbandments of a number of units in 1880 and 1881, the 15th Infantry was disbanded March 22, 1881. Companies "D," "G," "H," and "K" of the old regiment were maintained as "unattached companies."

On July 7, 1881, a new regiment, the Fifth Regiment of Infantry, Ohio, was formed as follows: Co. "D," 15th Infantry, Ohio became Co. "A;" Co. "G," 15th Infantry, Ohio became Co. "B;" Co. "H," 15th Infantry, Ohio became Co. "C;" Co. "K," 15th Infantry, Ohio became Co. "D;" Geneva Rifles—10th Inf., Ohio became Co. "E;" Cleveland Light Guard—Mustered in July 30 as Co. "F."

Units of the Fifth Regiment, and its predecessor—the 15th Regiment, saw active service within the state in the preservation of law and order upon the following occasions: Cleveland riots, 1877; Cincinnati riot, 1884; Newburg riots, 1885-6; Fairport riots, 1887; Cleveland riot, 1894; Berea, 1896; Cleveland riot, 1896; Conneaut, 1896; Fairport, 1897.

The Fifth Regiment of Infantry, Ohio, with various internal changes, continued in existence in Ohio until the outbreak of the Spanish-American War when it was mustered into federal service as the 5th Ohio Volunteer Infantry on May 11, 1898. It served at Tampa and Fernandina, Florida; its federal service in that war terminating with muster out at Cleveland on November 5, 1898, and the 5th Ohio reverted to state service. On April 14, 1899, the 5th Regiment of Infantry was disbanded and of its units, Companies "B," "C," "E," "G," and "H," were designated as "unattached companies" in the service of the state. On July 14, 1899, the 5th Ohio Infantry was reorganized employing the unattached companies as a nucleus.

The Regiment attended the Victory Celebration of Admiral Dewey at New York City in 1899; participated in the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1901, the World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo., in 1904, and the Jamestown Exposition in Jamestown, Va., in 1907. It took part in the funeral of President McKinley at Canton in 1901, and the dedication of the McKinley Memorial in Canton in 1907.

The Fifth Ohio, or units of the regiment, had periods of active State service in the maintenance of public peace and the preservation of life and property upon the following occasions: Cleveland riot, 1899; Columbus, 1910; Dayton Flood, 1913; Youngstown, 1915.

The Fifth Ohio Infantry continued in service in Ohio until mustered into federal service for duty on the Mexican border. It mobilized at Camp Willis, Columbus, Ohio, on June 16, 1916, and served on the border in the vicinity of El Paso, Texas, from September, 1916, to March, 1917, being mustered out of federal service March 15, 1917.

HISTORY OF THE 147th INFANTRY

CREST: That for the regiments of Ohio National Guard.
WREATH: Argent and azure.
MOTTO: Cargoneek Guyoxim (Always Ready.)
DESCRIPTION: The shield is blue for Infantry. The bend with the alerions is for service in Lorraine, and the lion rampant represents service in Belgium during the Ypres-Lys offensive.

With an undiminished luster, mellowed by years of service, the 147th Infantry of the 37th Division still is radiant in the Military service of our Republic. Though the designation, the 147th Infantry, was officially given in October, 1917, the history of this organization antedates that date by forty years. The parent stock was the 6th Ohio Infantry, to which was added for World War service, parts of ten companies of the 1st Ohio Infantry, parts of Companies D, F, H, K, L, and M of the 7th Ohio Infantry. Because of the fact that personnel was transferred rather than units to form the 147th Infantry, properly to the 6th Ohio Infantry belongs the ancestral honor.

The 6th Ohio Infantry had its origin in the year 1877 in the formation of the 16th Ohio Infantry, commanded by Colonel Henry G. Neubert of Toledo, Ohio, who received his colonelcy December 29, 1876. The 16th Infantry was made up of nine units at the time, to which Co. K of Fremont was added August 26, 1878. The nine original units were as follows: Company A (Wallondge Light Guards), Company B (Sandusky Light Guards), Company C (Toledo Greys), Company D (Foster Light Guards), Company E (Bryan Light Guards), Company F (Napoleon Light Guards), Company G (Western Reserve Guards), Company H (Milburn Guards), Company I (Bowling Green Guards).

On May 5th, 1898, the 16th Infantry became the 6th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, the meanwhile serving as a state militia. On May 12, 1898 the regiment was mustered into United States service for duty in the Spanish-American War. This duty, which entailed no combat service, brought the 6th Infantry to Cuba from January 3, 1899 to April 21, 1899, with stations at Cienfugas, Casilda, Trinidad and other posts. Mustered out of service of the United States on May 18, 1899, the 6th Ohio Infantry reverted to its original status as a state militia, until June 19, 1916, when federal service demanded its presence on the Mexican Border. This tour of service merged into the period of the World War, when this unit, in combination with other Ohio units, formed the 147th Infantry, 37th Division A. E. F. at Camp Sheridan, Alabama.

On June 28, 1918, the entire unit sailed from Newport News, Virginia, arriving at Brest, France, on July 5, 1918. There it was joined to the 74th Infantry Brigade about July 12, 1918 in the 3rd Training Area in the vicinity of Bourmont, Haute-Marne. Following a period of intensive training until the latter part of the month of July, it was ordered together with other infantry regiments of the 37th Division to the Baccarat Sector for sector training with the French VI Army Corps of the VII French Army. Relieving an infantry regiment of the United States 77th Division in the Baccarat Sector, on August 2, 1918, the 147th Infantry served in the front line until September 14, 1918, when relieved by the 14th (French) Division. The regiment then moved to station near Recicourt on September 21, 1918, and served with its division in a reserve capacity to the United States 79th Division in the Avocourt Sector until the Meuse-Argonne Offensive five days later when the 147th was again in the front line with the 37th Division. Following relief by the United States 32nd Division, the regiment returned to Recicourt (Meuse) and remained in the United States Fifth Corps, First Army Area until October 3, 1918. On that date it was attached to the United States Fourth Army Corps in the Second Army Area, where the 147th relieved an infantry regiment of the United States 89th Division in the front line trenches and remained there eight days. Beginning October 18, 1918, when the 147th moved to the Ypres area, the regiment served in Ypres-Lys operation until the Armistice was signed on November 11, 1918. As a token of this World War service the 147th Infantry has a streamer in its colors inscribed as follows: "Lorraine Meuse-Argonne, Ypres-Lys." Three officers of the present 147th Infantry saw service with the regiment in the World War: Lieutenant Colonel James Glore, who served as bugler in a Machine Gun Company; Major M. L. Crabtree, who ranked as corporal in the same outfit; and Major George B. Shanor, who served in the

HISTORY OF THE 74th INFANTRY BRIGADE

DESCRIPTION: On a pentagon, one point up, azure (light blue).
CREST: That for the National Guard of the State of Ohio proper.

The 74th Infantry Brigade, 37th Division, United States Army, was organized in October, 1917, by consolidating the First and Sixth Ohio Infantry into the 147th Infantry, filling the Third Ohio Infantry from elements of the Second and Seventh Ohio Regiments to form the 148th Infantry, and redesignating the Third Battalion of the 10th Ohio Infantry, the 136th Machine Gun Battalion. General William V. McMaken was made Commander of the newly formed Brigade.

Brigadier General Joseph A. Gaston succeeded to the Command of the Brigade on April 2, 1918, and remained in command until transferred to command of a depot Brigade at Camp on June 19th. His place was taken by Colonel Frederick W. Galbraith, when the Brigade was moved to Newport News. On June 22nd it embarked for France. It went into training in the Beaumont area where Colonel Galbraith was replaced by Brigadier General William P. Jackson.

From August 4th to September 18th the Brigade took over the Baccarat Sector in Lorraine. It was later assigned to the First Army as the center division of the V Army Corps, which bore the brunt of the Meuse-Argonne offensive. As a part of the 37th Division, the Brigade participated in the capture of the German stronghold at Montfaucon. Following a brief rest period in the first week of October, the Brigade was ordered to take over the Pannes-Remey sub-sector in the Thiencourt area, and after holding this sector for a week, it was ordered to the Belgian front to participate in two offensives of Ypres-Lys.

In Belgium the 37th Division made an enviable record. Here the brigade participated in two crossings of the Escaut River, the first crossing being on a bridge of logs constructed by infantry personnel.

On March 22, 1919, the Brigade embarked at Brest for the United States, arriving at Hoboken on March 30th and was immediately sent to Camp Mills. The Brigade was mustered out of service at Camp Sherman May 1, 1919.

Following the world war the Second Infantry Brigade was federally recognized December 10, 1920, and on July 1, 1921, was redesignated as the 74th Infantry Brigade, composed of the 147th Infantry and the 166th Infantry, with Headquarters and Headquarters Company stationed in Columbus. Brigadier General Frank D. Henderson was appointed Brigade Commander.

Since 1920 the 74th Brigade has performed its annual field training period at Camp Perry, with the exception of 1927, when Brigade Headquarters participated in a CPX at Fort Knox, and 1936 when the 74th Brigade engaged in the Second Army Maneuvers at Fort Knox.

In 1937 the Brigade was called upon for active State duty in the maintenance of law and order in the "little steel" strike. It served from June 22 to July 15 in Youngstown, Struthers, Campbell, Hubbard, Niles, Warren and Cleveland, with detachments in Canton and Massillon.

During August, 1940 the 74th Brigade engaged in the Second Army Maneuvers in Wisconsin.

Brigadier General Robert S. Beightler assumed command of the Brigade in August, 1940 and upon his promotion to command of the 37th Division the following October, was succeeded by Brigadier General Wm. L. Marlin.

October 15, 1940 the 74th Brigade was inducted into the Federal Service, and on October 19th entrained for Camp Shelby, Mississippi.

HISTORY OF THE 148th INFANTRY

MOTTO: We'll Do It.

DESCRIPTION: The shield is blue for Infantry, divided by a wavy fess of red, bordered by two gold bands, representing the Escaut River in Belgium, first crossed by the 148th Infantry and held under a terrific fire. The two gold fleurs-de-lis denote service in France and the holding of two sectors in that country. The gold lion rampant is from the present arms of Belgium and denotes service there. The motto is the catch phrase used in crossing the Escaut River when it seemed impossible without pontoons.

The 148th Infantry, Ohio National Guard was reorganized after the World War, being first designated as the Second Ohio Infantry, and received Federal recognition March 23, 1921. The Regiment has units in Toledo, Defiance, Clyde, Paulding, Fremont, Findlay, Oak Harbor, Spencerville, Kenton, Bowling Green, Ottawa, Ada, St. Marys, Sidney, Napoleon, Covington, Celina and Columbus.

Colonel Gilson D. Light was the first commander of the Regiment, serving from 1921 to 1924. Colonel Light then left the state of Ohio and was succeeded in command of the 148th by Colonel William L. Marlin. In 1926 Colonel Marlin was transferred to Cleveland and Colonel Light returned to command.

In 1925 Colonel Light was promoted to Brigadier General and was succeeded in command by Colonel Lee N. Murlin. On January 1, 1937, Colonel Murlin became Chief of Staff of the Thirty-seventh Division under General Light, who had since been promoted to Major General in command of the Thirty-seventh Division, since deceased.

Colonel Murlin was replaced by Colonel Emil F. Marx. Colonel Marx commanded the regiment until October 14, 1940, at which time he was replaced by Colonel Stuart A. Baxter, the present commanding officer.

Regimental Headquarters were maintained in Toledo until January 1, 1938, when they were moved to Columbus. On October 15, 1940, the 148th Infantry was inducted into Federal Service and was ordered to Camp Shelby, Mississippi, for training.

The 148th Infantry was the first regiment in the United States to receive War Department sanction for its regimental insignia.

HISTORY OF THE 166th INFANTRY

CREST: That for regiments of the Ohio National Guard.

WREATH: Argent and azure.

MOTTO: "Follow Me."

DESCRIPTION: The shield is white with the blue border . . . the older and the later Infantry colors. The rainbow was the device of the 42nd Division in the World War and the black Maltese Cross recalls the service in Puerto Rico in the Spanish War.

The 166th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, was organized in 1877, as the Fourteenth Infantry, Ohio National Guard, from existing companies in Columbus, Westerville, West Jefferson, Marysville and Richwood. The Regiment was mustered into Federal Service for the Spanish-American War as the Fourth Infantry, Ohio Volunteers, and served in Porto Rico as such.

The next Federal Service of the Regiment was seen on the Mexican Border, near El Paso, Texas.

As the 166th Infantry of the Rainbow Division, the Regiment served for a period of eighteen months in France during the World War, during which time it participated in operations of the Champagne-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne, and held defensive sectors in Lorraine and Champagne from February 21 to November 10, 1918. It was later quartered in Germany as a unit of the Army of Occupation.

Upon its reorganization following the World War the 166th Infantry once more became the Fourth Infantry, Ohio National Guard. In 1921 it received its wartime designation, that of the 166th Infantry, Seventy-fourth Brigade, Thirty-seventh Division.

In past years the Regiment has served in several state emergencies. Chief among these calls to service were the 1913 flood, the Ohio Penitentiary fire, relief administration in Hocking Valley, industrial disorders in the coal mining areas, disorders in the steel areas from 1920 to 1937, and the Ohio flood in 1937.

The three national services of the Regiment are commemorated in its white shield with the blue border, the older and later infantry colors, with the black Maltese cross for the Spanish-American war, the border for the Mexican Border duty and the Rainbow for the World War. The motto of the Regiment is "Follow Me." The present Regimental Commander is Colonel Herman C. Doellinger, Marysville, Ohio.

HISTORY OF THE

62nd FIELD ARTILLERY BRIGADE

CREST: That for the National Guard of Ohio proper.

DESCRIPTION: On a pentagon, one point up, gules, the crest.

The Sixty-Second Field Artillery Brigade owes its inception to the fact that, in the early days of 1917, the patriotic citizens of Ohio insisted that the Ohio Troops be organized into a complete Division. In order to accomplish this, three regiments of Field Artillery were hurriedly formed to support the two Ohio Infantry Brigades.

The Field Artillery in Ohio prior to the World War, consisted of one organization whose history dates back to July 6, 1837. This historic military organization was reorganized from a section to form a regiment in 1860, and saw service for the duration of the Civil War. It was mustered into service once more in 1898, for active duty in the Spanish-American War, but, contrary to expectations, did not serve outside the continental limits of the United States. In 1899, the Regiment was reduced in size, and, on September 23, 1911, the three remaining Batteries were designated the Battalion of Field Artillery, Ohio National Guard.

This Battalion was ordered to Mexican Border duty on July 16, 1916, and served until March 12, 1917. On May 4, 1917, the Battalion was expanded into a Regiment, and, on September 15, 1917, became a part of the 62nd Brigade of Field Artillery.

The pressing need of a Brigade of Field Artillery in 1917, was responsible for a newly formed Regiment of Ohio Cavalry being expanded and changed into three Regiments of Field Artillery. These two new Regiments, and the original Field Artillery Regiment, were then grouped together under the designation of the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade, and Ohio had the Artillery that was necessary for the support of the Division.

These three Regiments of Field Artillery, the 134th, 135th, and 136th, served overseas for the duration of the war and returned to this country to be mustered out of service in 1919. Reorganized again in 1919 and 1920, two of these Regiments, the 134th and 135th, have served honorably and well as part of the 37th Division. The 136th Regiment, the third unit of this Brigade, was not reorganized until June 25, 1936. Its reorganization finds the Sixty-Second Brigade again intact.

LEO M. KREBER
BRIGADIER GENERAL
U. S. A.

COMMANDING THE 62nd FIELD ARTILLERY BRIGADE

Brig. Gen. Kreber was graduated from the United States Military Academy in June, 1918, after having been appointed from Columbus, Ohio.

He continued his service in the Regular Army until 1922, during which time he served from July, 1919, to October, 1920, in the American Army of Occupation in Germany.

Immediately after this, he joined the Ohio National Guard on the Staff of Brigadier General Harold M. Bush, who then commanded the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade, rising to the rank of Major.

He then went to the 134th Field Artillery, as the Executive Officer, and, in 1936, was promoted to the rank of Colonel, and given the task of organizing the 136th Field Artillery, which he also commanded.

He was given the command of the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade on October 15, 1940, and promoted to the rank of Brigadier General on May 7, 1941.

HISTORY OF THE 134th FIELD ARTILLERY

CREST: That for regiments of Ohio National Guard.

WREATH: or and gules.

MOTTO: Fides et audax (Faithful and bold).

DESCRIPTION: The shield is red for artillery. The saltire represents Civil War service, and is blue to indicate that the service was with Union Forces. The three alerions are taken from the arms of Lorraine to denote the World War service in that department.

The 134th Field Artillery traces its origin back to July 6, 1839, at Cleveland, Ohio, with the organization of a gun section in the Cleveland Grays, a unit of the Ohio National Guard. In 1845, this section was redesignated the Cleveland Light Artillery, and in 1860 was expanded into a regiment and designated the First Regiment of Light Artillery, Ohio Volunteer Militia. One week after Fort Sumter was fired upon, this regiment was mustered into Federal service for ninety days as the First Regiment Light Artillery, Ohio Volunteers. On July 27, 1861 it was mustered out of service, only to be reorganized and again mustered into Federal service on August 6, 1861, and from that time on was in the active service of the Union forces, and due to the fact its various units were scattered among the different theatres of action, it saw service in the majority of the battles of the Civil War, and today from its standard float streamers attesting of its service at Shiloh, Valley, Manassas, Fredericksburg, Murfreesborough, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Vicksburg, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Franklin, Nashville, Kentucky 1862, Tennessee 1862, 1863, 1864, Georgia 1864, Mississippi 1862, and Virginia 1862.

After four years of faithful service to the Union, the regiment was mustered out on July 30, 1865. In 1872, it was reorganized as the Cleveland Light Artillery, Ohio Independent Militia, and in 1886 was expanded to eight batteries and designated the First Regiment, Light Artillery, Ohio National Guard. The regiment continued in state service until the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, at which several of the units were transferred to form cavalry and infantry units. This reduced the regiment to one battalion known as the First Battalion Ohio Volunteer Light Artillery.

This battalion was mustered into Federal service on May 11, 1898, but saw no service outside the continental limits of the United States. In October, 1898, it was mustered out of Federal service and reverted to its former state status, receiving the batteries which had been taken away at the outbreak of the war.

On April 14, 1899, the regiment was disbanded, but Batteries A, B, C, D, E, F, and H continued to serve as unattached batteries of light artillery. On September 23, 1911, Batteries A, B, and C were designated the Battalion of Field Artillery, Ohio National Guard.

On July 11, 1916, this Battalion was again mustered into Federal service for service on the Mexican Border. On May 4, 1917, the Battalion was again expanded to a regiment and designated the First Field Artillery, Ohio National Guard, and in October of that year was sent to Camp Sheridan, Alabama, and was redesignated the 134th Field Artillery. After several months extensive training in the Southern camp it was sent overseas and saw service with the 28th and 92nd Divisions, being actively engaged when the war ended by the signing of the Armistice on November 11, 1918.

At Camp Sherman, Ohio, on April 9, 1919, the regiment was mustered out of Federal service, and in August of the same year was reorganized as the First Field Artillery, Ohio National Guard. In 1920, it was redesignated as the 134th Field Artillery. In 1935 it was changed from horse-drawn to motor drawn.

On October 15, 1940, the regiment was again mustered into Federal service and on October 24th arrived at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, and since that time has been engaged in a period of intensive training that it may be able to perform, in a manner worthy of its tradition, all duties demanded of it.

HISTORY OF THE 135th FIELD ARTILLERY

DESCRIPTION: The shield is red for artillery. The saltire represents Civil War service, and is blue to indicate that the service was with the Union Forces. The three alerions are taken from the arms of Lorraine to denote the World War service in that department. The bordure is added as a mark of difference from the coat-of-arms of the 134th Field Artillery.

The 135th Field Artillery Regiment had its birth in what was known as the Cleveland Light Artillery. In 1839 a gun squad was formed within the Cleveland Grays, a military company of the early days. This was the beginning of what is now the full regiment, and the date to which the 135th Field Artillery traces its inception.

In 1845 the gun squad withdrew from the Grays, forming a separate organization known as the Cleveland Light Artillery.

During the period 1845 to 1860, the original battery in Cleveland had been the guiding spirit for an organization which was to gain the proportions of a regiment and to be known as "1st Regiment, Ohio Light Artillery."

Companies A, B, D and E, all from Cleveland, Company C from Brooklyn, which was then a separate city, and Company F of Geneva, Ohio, had been organized into a regiment and as of August 1st, 1860, designated as "1st Regiment of Light Artillery of Ohio Volunteer Militia." Later these units were redesignated "The 1st Regiment of Ohio Light Artillery, 3rd Brigade, 4th Division, Ohio Militia."

Upon its entrance into the Civil War, the regiment had its baptism of fire at Philippi, West Virginia, on June 3, 1861. Following the first 90 days service the regiment was reorganized on August 8, 1861, and twelve batteries were formed in rapid succession throughout the state, in addition to those already comprising the Cleveland Light Artillery.

The Ohio Artillery had now become a state-wide organization, and was completely reconstituted as the "First Regiment, Light Artillery, Ohio Volunteers" on February 3, 1862. A list of the principal engagements follows:

Shiloh, Manassas, Fredericksburg, Murfreesborough, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Nashville, Atlanta, as well as operations in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Mississippi and Virginia.

By 1872, the reorganized Cleveland Light Artillery was a part of the Ohio Independent Militia, and officially accepted by the State of Ohio under the Ohio Independent Militia law in May, 1873. Special Order No. 7, dated May 6, 1886, formed the First Regiment, Light Artillery, Ohio National Guard.

During this period of its existence the regiment assisted in such calls for state aid as Railway Riots of 1877; Cleveland Labor Riots of 1882; Cincinnati Floods and Riots of 1883; Cincinnati Riots of 1884; and also in Cincinnati in 1886 at the time of the further labor trouble there. The regiment also was in demand during the Zanesville Railroad Riot of 1887; Toledo Fire, 1894; Wheeling Greek Campaign, 1894; Akron Labor Riot, 1894; Washington Courthouse Riot, 1894; Mount Sterling "Industrial Army" trouble, 1894; Springfield Fire, 1894; and the Cleveland Street Railway Riot, 1899.

In 1898 certain units of the regiment were transferred to the Infantry and Cavalry. The remainder, designated "First Battalion OVLA," was called into Federal service on May 11, 1898, and mobilized for service in the Spanish War.

It had no foreign service during that war, getting no farther than Camp Bushnell, and in October was mustered out of Federal Service.

The battalion was called into the Federal service June 19, 1916. Mobilized at Camp Willis, Ohio, July 5, 1916, the battalion was mustered into Federal service on July 11, 1916, and after a brief training period left for Mexican Border duty on Labor Day, 1916.

Arriving on September 7th, the battalion served on the Mexican Border in the vicinity of Fort Bliss, Texas until March 12, 1917. Later at Fort Harrison, the battalion with added units was on May 4, 1917, designated the First Field Artillery, Ohio National Guard. On September 15, 1917, the First Field Artillery was redesignated the 134th Field Artillery, and assigned to the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade, 37th Division. The regiment found itself on October 10, 1918, occupying a portion of the Marbache sector in the Lorraine district.

While there, the regiment served as assigned artillery in support of the 92nd Division, in lieu of divisional artillery. The Command Post was located during this

COMMANDING THE 135th FIELD ARTILLERY

Colonel Robert D. Schmidt, commanding officer of the 135th Field Artillery, first entered the service of the United States as a candidate at the First Officers Training School at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, on May 15, 1917. Forced to leave the school for hospitalization due to an injury, he completed the course on November 26, 1917, and was commissioned a 2nd Lieut. of Field Artillery on that date.

He was assigned to the 324th Field Artillery and served with that regiment in France for the duration of the War. On April 2nd, 1919, he was promoted to 1st Lieutenant and upon demobilization was discharged in that grade on June 5, 1919.

Upon the reorganization of the National Guard, Col. Schmidt enlisted as a private in the Cavalry on October 22, 1920, and on June 14, 1923, upon the organization of Battery B, 135th Field Artillery, was again commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant. On October 9, 1923, he was promoted to 1st Lieutenant, and on January 5, 1925, was promoted to Captain and assumed command of the battery.

On December 1, 1930, he was commissioned Major, having assumed command of the 1st Battalion of the Regiment, was promoted to Lt. Colonel on February 8, 1932, and upon the death of Col. Shem assumed command of the Regiment, being promoted to Colonel, Field Artillery, November 15, 1937.

He again entered Federal Service when the Regiment was inducted on October 15, 1940.

Col. Schmidt is a graduate of Case School of Applied Science, Class of 1916.

The 136th Field Artillery was originally formed in 1917 by redesignating Troops B and C of the 1st Ohio Cavalry as 3rd Ohio Field Artillery. Units were organized in Columbus, Cincinnati, and Youngstown. Colonel P. Lincoln Mitchell was given command of the Regiment and following a short training period at home station the Regiment was mobilized at Camp Sheridan, Montgomery, Alabama, where it underwent nine months of intensive training. During this time, the Regiment was redesignated as the 136th Field Artillery and assigned to the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade, a part of the 37th Division.

In June of 1918 the Regiment was prepared for overseas service and transferred to Camp Upton, New York, at which point it was split into two contingents, one sailing out of Baltimore, Maryland and the other out of Montreal, Canada. These contingents were assembled as a part of a convoy at Halifax and sailed for England on July 4, 1918. Two days off the English coast the convoy was attacked by hostile submarine and one of the ships on which a portion of the Regiment was being transported suffered slight damage.

After a few days in England the Regiment was transferred to France and at Camp DeSouge, near Bordeaux, the finishing touches of the Regiment's training for active service were applied and in September the Regiment was ordered to the front where it saw service in the Marbache, St. Mihiel, Argonne, and Meuse Argonne sectors. Following the signing of the Armistice the Regiment was billeted in northeastern France. In February the Regiment was transferred to an embarkation area adjacent to LeMans, France, and in March the Regiment proceeded to Brest and was transported to the United States aboard the U. S. S. Connecticut, landing at Newport News, Virginia.

Following a short stay at Camp Stuart, Virginia, the Regiment toured through Ohio, parading at Youngstown, Cincinnati, and Columbus and was demobilized on April 10, 1919, at Camp Sherman, Ohio.

The 136th Field Artillery, Ohio National Guard was reorganized in the fall of 1936 by Colonel Leo M. Kreber (now Brig. General, 62nd Field Artillery Brigade), with organizations at Dayton, Columbus, Circleville, Wapakoneta, Cambridge, Caldwell, Dover, Sandusky, and Fostoria.

In the spring of 1937 the Sandusky and Fostoria Batteries were transferred to the 135th Field Artillery for their veteran Batteries located at Piqua and Lima. Subsequent to organization the Regiment trained yearly at Camp Perry, Ohio, Ft. Knox, Kentucky, and Warrens, Wisconsin.

On October 14, 1940, the Regimental Commander, Col. Leo M. Kreber, was transferred to command of the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade and command of the Regiment was given to Lt. Col. Kenneth Cooper, Executive Officer, 135th Field Artillery. On October 15, 1940, the Regiment was inducted into federal service at home station, arriving at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, on October 26. The time to date has been spent in intensive field training and a reorganization of the Regiment from a three battalion status to a two battalion status with the addition of Antitank Batteries and Battalion Service Batteries and the reception and training of such selectees to bring the organization to prescribed strength.

HISTORY OF THE 112th ENGINEERS (COMBAT)

CREST: That for regiments of Ohio National Guard.

WREATH: Argent and sable.

MOTTO: Bello Ac Pace Paratus (Prepared in Peace and in War.)

DESCRIPTION: The field is from the arms of Gen. Moses Cleveland, founder of the city of Cleveland, and the Captain of a company of Sappers and Miners in 1779. The three billets represent the pillars set in the roads to Montfaucon which were blown out by this regiment. The lion of Belgium is a reminder of the service in that country under King Albert.

The 112th Engineer Regiment, United States National Guard, traces its origin to 1837, when a military company known as the "City Guards" was organized in Cleveland. From that time to the present, the 112th Engineers Regiment has been variously designated as: Cleveland Grays; First Company, First Regiment, O. V. I.; Company A, First O. V. I.; The Battalion of Engineers, Ohio National Guard; Companies A, B, C, and D, Eleventh Provisional Engineers, U. S. A.; First Ohio Engineers; 112th Engineers, Ohio National Guard; 112th Engineers, U. S. National Guard (Combat).

One of the most glorious pages in the history of this organization is its record made in the Civil War. Battle honors of the Regiment won in the War of the Rebellion are Bull Run, Shiloh, Murfreesborough, Chickamauga, Atlanta, Kentucky, 1862, and Tennessee, 1863-64. At the close of the war the returning Grays, together with those members who had remained in Cleveland, carried on an independent military company.

In April, 1865, during the obsequies of President Lincoln, the Grays had the signal honor of acting as honor guard in the funeral procession. On March 2, 1881, the Grays visited Washington to act as escort to President Hayes and General Garfield from the White House to the inaugural ceremonies. Six months later the organization was selected to act as a guard at the funeral of President Garfield. The Grays again visited Washington on March 4, 1889, to attend the inauguration of Benjamin Harrison.

At the outbreak of the War with Spain, the United States Government adopted the policy of accepting for service only those organizations already a part of the organized militia. After some rearranging of military provisions, the Grays were admitted to the service as a Battalion of Engineers, of the Tenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The outfit was never given the opportunity of serving outside the continental limits of the United States, and was mustered out of service March 23, 1899.

The street railway strike of 1899 made it necessary for the Battalion of Engineers to be called out in answer to the state's call, notwithstanding the fact that no arms or equipment had been furnished by the state. Materials were soon obtained, however, and the men were ready for any duty. After this tour of active duty the work of reorganization was taken up where it had been dropped. The civil and social side of the Gray's organization had been carried on by the old members and men who did not enter the United States service, and after the return of the Battalion from its winter camp in Georgia in 1898, the two came together once more in order that the original purpose of the organization might be carried out.

On May 26, 1902, the "Scots Guards" of Cleveland, a famous and splendidly organized independent company, came into the Battalion as Company D. For the funeral of President McKinley the entire Ohio National Guard was assembled at Canton. The Engineers arrived early to lay out the camp site for the troops and provide necessary facilities.

In 1913 the Regiment rendered valuable service during the Dayton flood.

In the spring of 1916, strained relations with the government of Mexico necessitated calling out of the National Guard, and the Battalion of Ohio Engineers prepared for service. The companies were recruited to war strength and intensive training started. The four Ohio Engineer Companies were combined with those of Michigan and South Carolina to form the Eleventh Provisional Engineer Regiment. The work of the Regiment on the border consisted mainly of guard duty and further training.

In March, 1918, orders were received to entrain for Fort Sheridan, Ill., for muster out, but before this could be accomplished war was declared with Germany and it was necessary to retain the troops in Federal service. The Battalion of Engineers was expanded to form the First Regiment of Engineers, Ohio National Guard. Col. John R. McQuigg was in command, with Lieut. Col. Fred M. Fanning second in command. The Regiment had its preliminary training at Camp Sheridan and in Montgomery.

STANLEY WOLFE

COLONEL
Q. M. C.

COMMANDING THE 112th QUARTERMASTER REGIMENT

Colonel Stanley Wolfe was born in Sandusky County, Ohio, August 22, 1893. He attended the public schools in Fremont, Ohio. In 1912 he graduated from Fremont High School and in 1913 he entered Kenyon College at Gambier, Ohio.

Colonel Wolfe has had a long and brilliant military career. He enlisted in Company K, Sixth Ohio Infantry in April, 1914. In June, 1915, he had elevated himself to the rank of Second Lieutenant, and one year later changed the gold bar for a silver one. In September, 1917, he was sent to Montgomery, Alabama, to train for service overseas. The Sixth Ohio Infantry was changed to the 147th Infantry at Montgomery, and the Colonel was transferred from Company K to the command of the Supply Company. Throughout the entire war he served as Supply Officer for the 147th Infantry Regiment under Colonel Frederick W. Galbraith.

On June 16, 1918, the 147th sailed for France. Until September, 1918, the Colonel was stationed in the Baccarat Sector. From September 26th to October 1st, the 147th was engaged in the Battle of the Argonne Forest, and it was during this battle near Ivory that Colonel Wolfe was wounded in the left arm.

On September 28, 1918, First Lieutenant Wolfe became Captain Wolfe. From October 7 to October 18, he served in the Metz Sector. The Colonel's outfit was engaged in the Belgian Drive of November first to fourth, and the last drive, which began on November 10th and lasted until the Armistice.

In May, 1919, Colonel Wolfe returned to the United States, after having been sent all over Belgium and France. On May 29, 1919, he was discharged from the Army. When the 148th Infantry was organized in 1921, he rejoined the service as Supply Officer for this Regiment. Here he served until January, 1930.

On January 1, 1930, Captain Wolfe became a Major, and was placed on the State Staff of the 37th Division. When the 112th Quartermaster Regiment was organized on May 15, 1936, he was transferred to this organization in command of the Second Battalion. On August 1, 1940, he became Lieutenant Colonel Stanley Wolfe, and on February 25, 1941, he was promoted to Colonel.

For distinguished service during the War, the Colonel was awarded the Purple Heart, and for feeding the troops of the 37th Division under fire in the Argonne Forest, he was awarded the French War Cross.

HISTORY OF THE 112th MEDICAL REGIMENT

SHIELD: Per chevron reversed sanguine and argent, in chief the skull and horns of a Texas Longhorn steer of the second, in base a conventionalized poppy and a fleur-de-lis of the first.

WREATH: Argent and sanguine.

DESCRIPTION: The shield is maroon and white. The M. D. colors. The skull and horns of the Texas Longhorn steer represent service on the Mexican border, and the poppy and the fleur-de-lis symbolize service in Flanders and in France, respectively, during the World War.

MOTTO: Auxilium semper adest (Help always ready.)

In 1903, medical units, or as they were called, "companies of instruction," were formed in Zanesville, Columbus, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo and Findlay. The formation of these medical units really was the beginning of the present organization known as the 112th Medical Regiment.

Many and varied changes as to location, designation and organization have occurred through the years: companies of instruction to hospital or ambulance company sections—to ambulance and field hospital companies, to 112th Sanitary Train, and now companies grouped together in one regiment. The present 112th Medical Regiment consists of a Headquarters and Band, Headquarters and Service Company, 3 collecting companies, 3 ambulance companies and 3 clearing (Hospital) companies.

The 112th Medical Regiment, under different designations, has seen service on the Mexican border in 1914, and the World War in 1917, besides rendering assistance in numerous floods and storms.

This Regiment entered the World War in 1917 under the designation of 112th Sanitary Train under the command of Lieut. Col. John C. Darby. Participation was had in the Meuse-Argonne offensive and Ypres-Lys offensive to the Baccarat Sector and St. Mihiel Sector, entitling the regiment to carry two streamers attached to their Regimental Colors.

During the year 1920, and 1921, reorganization of the Medical units of the Ohio National Guard was in progress. In 1921, authority was granted for the organization of a new unit to be designated as the 112th Medical Regiment.

Ambulance Company No. 1 at Columbus was mustered into service on February 25, 1921; Sanitary Company No. 134 at Ashland on April 19th; Regimental Headquarters at Columbus on April 25th; Hospital Company No. 1 at Barberton on March 18th, which on July 1st was redesignated 134th Hospital Company; the 112th Veterinary Company at Westerville on May 17th; Ambulance Company 134 (horse drawn) also at Westerville on May 14th.

The first Field and Staff (Regimental Headquarters) was composed of Col. Harry H. Snively, Commanding Officer; Lieut. Col. Harry D. Jackson, Executive Officer; Maj. Howard E. Boucher, Plans and Training Officer; Capt. F. M. Stanton, Adjutant; Maj. Harry W. Brown, Division Veterinarian; Lieut. Frederick Kirker, Chaplain.

In 1931, the Regiment suffered the loss of Col. Harry H. Snively, who was succeeded by Col. Harry D. Jackson.

The Regiment was ordered into Federal Service by Executive Order 8551 on October 15, 1941, and reported at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, on October 21st, for a year's field training.

145th INFANTRY HISTORY

Baccarat Sector, the 145th Infantry, with the rest of the 37th Division, moved to the U. S. 1st Army Area, taking station at Recicourt (Meuse) on September 21, 1918, attached to the U. S. 5th Corps. The 37th Division took over the Avocourt Sector on September 23, 1918, from the 79th Division and served there until that Sector was merged into the Meuse-Argonne offensive on September 26th. While the 37th Division was in the Montfaucon-Avocourt Sector, the 145th Infantry was the division reserve. When the Meuse-Argonne offensive commenced, the 145th Infantry was in the front line with the 37th Division and served in that operation until the division was relieved on October 1, 1918, returning to the vicinity of Recicourt (Meuse) and remaining in the U. S. 5th Corps Area until October 3, 1918. On the latter date the 145th Infantry, with the 37th Division, moved to the U. S. 2nd Army Area and was attached to the U. S. 4th Corps. On October 7, 1918, the 145th Infantry relieved an infantry regiment of the 89th Division in the front line trenches in the Pannes Sector and remained in the front line until relieved by a regiment of the 28th Division on October 16, 1918. The 145th Infantry moved on October 18, 1918, to the Ypres (Belgium) Area, arriving October 21, and with the 37th Division was attached to the Army of France in Belgium, being assigned to the French 30th Corps on October 28, 1918. The regiment served with this French Corps until November 7, when it was assigned to the French 34th Corps with which it served in the Ypres-Lys offensive until the armistice. Upon return to the United States, the 145th Infantry was demobilized at Camp Sherman, Ohio, on April 22, 1919.

The 145th Infantry is entitled to bear on its colors battle streamers in the color of the victory ribbon with the following inscriptions: Lorraine, Meuse-Argonne, Ypres-Lys.

During 1919, several units of the Third Regiment of Infantry, Ohio National Guard, were organized; and on August 2, 1920, the Third Regiment of Infantry, O. N. G., was organized. On July 1, 1921, the Third Regiment of Infantry, O. N. G., was formally redesignated the 145th Infantry, O. N. G., and the State of Ohio announced that the regiment was organized to perpetuate the history of the Fifth Regiment of Infantry which served in the Spanish-American War as the Fifth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, reorganized after the Spanish-American War as the Fifth Regiment of Infantry, O. N. G., and which served during the World War as the 145th Regiment of Infantry, 37th Division, A. E. F.

Since the World War the 145th Infantry has been called out on emergency duty within the state upon the following occasions: Coal mines—S. E. Ohio, 1922; Lorain & Sandusky tornado, 1924; Niles riot, 1924; Cadiz, 1932; Toledo riots, 1934; Warren, 1937.

The regiment has an unusually competent Corps of officers and non-commissioned officers and maintains their high standards by Army extension courses and regimental schools. 28 of its officers are graduates of courses at the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia, and 16 of the officers and several of the non-commissioned officers are veterans of the World War. Two of these officers, Lt. Colonels Cecil B. Whitcomb and Rudolph S. Ursprung were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in action.

Since its organization the regiment has been commanded by Colonels: Allan T. Brinsmade, 1877-1881; Emery W. Force, 1881-1882; Hosea E. Hill, 1883-1884; Fred H. Flick, 1884-1889; J. W. Gibbons, 1889-1893; Cortland L. Kennan, 1893-1899; Charles X. Zimmerman, 1899-1917; A. W. Davis, 1917; S. B. Stanbery, 1917-1918; Frank C. Gerlach, 1918-1919; Florence S. Van Gorder, 1919; Ludwig S. Conelly, 1920-1929; William L. Marlin, 1929-1937; and Luke P. Wolfford, 1937 to date.

Supply company. Four others, who are now in the 147th, saw service: Major Edward Heilman and Lieutenant Robert Walker, both of whom served with the 166th Infantry; Major Frank T. Balke in the Navy; and Captain William Burton with the Cavalry. No enlisted man remaining in the present 147th has an overseas record with the regiment.

Returning from Europe the 147th was demobilized at Camp Sherman, Ohio on April 19, 1919. By General Orders No. 3, A. G. of Ohio, May 15, 1919 authorization was promulgated for two provisional regiments of infantry to perpetuate old State units which had served in the World War. On August 4, 1919, General Orders No. 12, A. G. of Ohio defined just what units, according to arm or service should be organized and it is recorded in Bulletin No. 2, A. G. of Ohio, June 30, 1922 that the first unit of the 1st Ohio Infantry so organized was Federally recognized and accepted as Company A, 1st Ohio Infantry, on November 13, 1919. On July 1, 1921, the 1st Ohio Infantry was renamed the 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, in order to carry on down through the corridors of military history and state lore the valiant and full service of the 147th Infantry in the World War.

Since the World War the 147th has not rested upon tradition or its battle record. Commendations and testimonials of its efficiency and training have been accorded the regiment by the War Department Authorities, and peace time service has demonstrated the invaluable service the organization has rendered. In the mining troubles of Eastern Ohio, in the floods at Lorain and Cincinnati, in the Columbus prison disaster, in the processing of Selective Service men, and at Reception Centers, the 147th Infantry has established an enviable record and a saga of heroic and brilliant service.

Summoned again to United States Service, the 147th Infantry is now stationed at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, having been inducted into such service on October 15, 1940. Under Colonel John A. Blount as Commanding Officer, the 147th is going forward to fulfill its motto: "Always Ready."

time at St. Genevieve. Considerable action was seen during this period and the regiment having suffered rather heavy casualties in men and animals during a continuous ten-day period, was withdrawn to a rest area. After seven days of recuperation during which time replacements were obtained the front was again its destination, this time to the vicinity of Vigneuilles, Pannes sector, in support of the 28th Division, where the regiment reinforced the artillery brigade of Brig. Gen. Donnelly. The signing of the Armistice on November 11, 1918, found the regiment still in support of the 28th Division.

In August, 1919, directly following the return from France, the First Field Artillery, Ohio National Guard, was reorganized as a full regiment. In 1920 the regiment was again re-designated the 134th Field Artillery and Batteries E and F and Service Battery, 134th F. A. were on July 1, 1921, designated as the 135th Field Artillery, to which further units were to be added to constitute the regiment. On February 1, 1922, regimental organization was completed.

Peace time service since World War I has seen the regiment in many capacities of mercy and assistance as well as honorary assignments. On June 29, 1924, various units arrived at Lorain, Ohio, to succor the victims of the great Lorain tornado, remaining for ten days. Honorary salutes have been rendered for the late Ambassador Myron T. Herrick; Colonel Charles A. Lindberg; former President Herbert Hoover and many other dignitaries, including high British and Canadian officials at Canadian-American Border Day celebrations. Valuable assistance was also rendered by certain units during the disastrous Ohio River floods of 1937.

Called into Federal Service again on October 15, 1940, the regiment moved to Camp Shelby, Miss., on October 21, arriving on the 25th after a five day overland march. Its full war strength compliment of men and officers was completed in February, 1941.

The regimental standard bears seventeen battle streamers dating from 1861 to 1918.

112th ENGINEERS (COMBAT) HISTORY

The Regiment, less Company F, landed at Brest, France, on July 5, 1918, and saw its first action in the Baccarat sector. After routine Engineer work in the Baccarat sector, the Regiment, under its new designation of 112th Engineers, was made ready for combat service. This duty was performed in the same excellent way as had been its work as a construction outfit, and the Regiment received many commendations for its service in France. It participated in the Meuse-Argonne and Ypres-Lys offensives and served in the Lorraine and San Mihiel sectors.

As a part of the movement to reorganize the National Guard following the World War, Col. John McQuigg instituted recruiting for the Regiment of Engineers. The organization of the Regiment was completed with the muster of the Medical Detachment under Major Byron Colvin on April 1, 1920. The Regiment was designated First Engineers, Ohio National Guard, and upon the promotion of Colonel McQuigg, was put under command of Col. Andrew W. Lea.

The Regiment's outstanding services to the state since the World War include service following the Lorain tornado of 1924, and the Mahoning Valley steel strike of 1937. In both of these instances the Engineers performed their duty in an efficient and commendable manner. Col. D. F. Pancoast relieved Col. Elliott Whitlock in 1930 as Commanding Officer.

On October 15, 1940, the 112th Engineers were inducted into Federal Service by virtue of an Executive Order signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, September 25, 1940. After completing the physical examination of the officers and enlisted men, the Regiment entrained on October 19 at 11 P. M. and arrived at McLaurin, Mississippi, at 6:30 P. M. on October 21, 1940. The Regiment was now under the command of Col. A. E. Henderson. The following week, the Regiment began a thirteen week period of basic training. During this time, it was honored by being chosen to survey and design the new rifle range on the reservation and the new airport in Hattiesburg. On December 19, 1940, the Regiment moved from its temporary quarters to its permanent location in Area H, between 18th and 22nd streets on Highway No. 24. During the second week of January, 1941, the Regiment was the first to fire on the new range that they helped to construct. During the general inspection of the Division on January 17 and 18 the Regiment gave a satisfactory account of itself and Company B was publicly commended by General Beightler for an excellent demolitions demonstration.

The first contingent of selectees reached the Regiment on January 22, and the last group arrived on February 9, 1941. During the same period, promotions and additions were made in the officer personnel. Major Robert Stewart was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel, and was made Executive Officer, while Majors Walter Bishop and Eugene Kenny were given command of the 1st and 2nd Battalions, respectively. During March, the Regiment completed its mobilization program and favorably passed an inspection by General Beightler and his staff. On Army Day, April 7, the Regiment took part in the 37th Division revue. During the following week, platoons from the Engineers began taking part in the Infantry Combat Teams maneuvers. On Saturday, April 26, at 7:05 A. M., the Regiment received an alert and packed and marched out as though for extended service, but returned to its station before noon of the same day. At this time, the Regiment consisted of fifty-three officers and eight hundred and twenty-four enlisted men.
