◀CLASS SONG.▶

O fain would we linger our farewell in speaking,
As mem'ry recalls the bright days that are past.
When friendship fast bound us with ties which ne'er
broken

Will grow firmer still during life to the last.
Inspired by the bright hopes of youth we have journeyed
Together on wisdom's broad, far-reaching road,
Still hoping the future might render, redoubled,
The harvest by willing and patient hands sowed.

Although our lives henceforth be widely divergent,
And differently chequered by sunshine and shade.
Yet the bond which unites us will ever be cherished,
And held as a memory never to fade.

As the rill gathering strength makes the brook, then the river,

And then to the sea rushes on in its might.
Surmounting all trials, may virtue and honor
Impel us to rise cleaving still to the right.

Before us is life, with its pleasures and sorrows,
Within us are hearts filled with courage and hope;
Above us, our Father with loving eye watches,
And gives us new strength with all evils to cope.
Still striving to conquer and ne'er to be conquered,
May we to the end of our life's school excel.
And then true and tried, may our class be united
As now when we utter our last sad farewell.
