THE ORACLE

JUNE, 1938

PUBLISHED SIX TIMES A YEAR BY THE STUDENTS
OF BANGOR HIGH SCHOOL
BANGOR, MAINE

===== 1938 =====

The "Oracle" is approved by the Bangor Chamber of Commerce as an advertising medium. Entered as Second Class Matter June 14, 1914, at the Post Office at Bangor, Maine, under the Act of March, 1879.

FOREWORD

To interpret the school to the community—to give the people of Bangor a clear and well-rounded picture of life at Bangor High School—has been a definite aim of the 1937-38 Oracle Board.

A wide-spread publicity campaign, which included red and white posters distributed through the town, gained a twenty percent increase in subscribers, a substantial number of whom were citizens of Bangor. In the magazine itself a department of special interest was "Who's Who Among the Teachers", which presented pictures and brief accounts of various high school teachers. New members of the faculty, department heads, coaches, and others were featured this year. In every issue the Oracle presented a write-up of a prominent business concern which advertises with us. The HOBBIES section and CRACKS AND COMPLIMENTS—a style column—were also new and interesting.

A highlight was "ORACLE Day" at the COMMERCIAL, when the board took over the controls and put out an edition of the COMMERCIAL. Editorials, society news, personals, articles, sports, radio, advertising, were handled to a large extent by the members of the board, and the project was so successful that the ORACLE has been invited to "come again" next year.

Perhaps the most important event of the year was the presentation to the school of a motion picture projector with sound, in honor of Miss Mary C. Robinson, first advisor of the ORACLE. The projector was bought with money from the surplus built up through several years, so that it was the gift of ORACLE boards both past and present.

Increased subscriptions, new departments, the ORACLE edition of the COMMERCIAL, the gift of a motion picture projector to the school, and First Honor rating by the National Scholastic Press Association, together with the knowledge and fun gained by every member of the board, have made up a happy and successful year.

Miss Mary C. Robinson

as her students knew her in 1915, after her first twelve years as faculty advisor to the Oracle.

DEDICATION

To the three former advisors of the Oracle

MISS MARY C. ROBINSON

MISS M. CATHERINE MULLEN

MR. DAVID E. BARKER

Miss Mary C. Robinson—teacher of English and Latin, first Dean of Girls, debate coach, and advisor to the ORACLE—you are known for your works and loved for yourself by all those who have the good fortune to know you, and they are very many. For thirty-seven years you gave unsparingly of your time and of your interest to the ORACLE; under your guidance its growth was rapid and its standards were high. We have presented a gift to Bangor High School in your honor, but no gift can express the gratitude and admiration which we feel for you. For your years of untiring devotion, in the name of all your students of the past, we thank you from our hearts.

Miss M. Catherine Mullen—Head of the Department of English, keen, progressive and popular teacher—

Mr. David E. Barker—former Commercial teacher, coach of football and basketball, friend to students—

The ORACLE has won signal literary honors and has prospered financially under your leadership. Three times winner of the Maine Plaque, five times awarded First Honors and once All-American rating by the National Scholastic Press Association, the ORACLE has taken a place among the leading high school publications in the country. To your modern and progressive ideas, your never failing interest, we owe in large measure the success of our magazine today. For your splendid achievements, the inspiration of your fine personalities, and the friendliness which made it a joy to work with you, we thank you both.

MENS SANA IN CORPORE SANO

CLASS ODE, 1938

by Margaret Maxfield

With zeal we take the open road
To seek whate'er our futures hold;
What lies ahead we do not know,
What hidden stars or rainbow's gold.

Though some may find the way too long,
And watch their visions disappear,
Still, some will strive to reach the goal,
Despite the mires of doubt and fear.

Our lives are what we make of them,
So, God, guide us upon our way,
That strong in body and in mind,
We'll staunchly face each coming day.

MENS SANA IN CORPORE SANO

CLASS OF NINETEEN THIRTY-EIGHT

Andrews, Ralph E.

Ralph is a member of our fast-growing group of horse enthusiasts.

Festival Chorus (4); Senior Chorus (4).

Armitage, Mary Ellen

Horseback riding by day and dates at night make Mary Ellen's day quite all right.

Girls' Glee Club (1); Debate Club (2, 3, 5); Junior Chorus (3); Senior Chorus (4); Cheerleader (3, 4).

Babcock, Harold Louis, "Hobby"

"Hobby" is a good nickname for this fellow; his is—of all things—building boats.

Senior Chorus (4); Festival Chorus (4).

Baird, Jean Marion

Jean is an ardent sports enthusiast, with swimming and camping heading her list.

Girls' Glee Club (1, 2); Debate Club (2, 3); Senior Chorus (4); Home Economics Exhibition (2); Orchestra (1, 2, 3, 4); Traffic Officer (1).

Baker, Richard Chase, "Ike"

"Ike" is an outdoor man plus. Hunting and fishing are his specialties.

Junior Exhibition—semi-finals; Senior Chorus; Right Guide Sergeant on R. O. T. C.

Barchard, Murray

This live wire is going in for radio work after the "4 long years" are finished.

R. O. T. C. (2, 3).

Barker, Elizabeth Jane, "Bette"

Dark, petite, vivacious, that's our Bette. She can sew—she can cook—she can dance—and can the gal act! Whatever she does, we're betting on Bette.

Snapdragons (1); Oracle Board, Hobbies (4); Senior Play "China Boy" (4); Dramatic Club Play "New Fires" (4); Latin Club (2, 3, 4), Consul (2); French Play "Les Facheux" (4); Senior Chorus (4); Expression (2); Science Club, Vice-President (4); Dramatic Club Secretary (4); Class Basketball (1, 2); National Honor Society.

Barnes, Kenneth Waldo, "Ken"

For hard-boiled sergeants, Ken is tops
In any man's brigade;
Whatever he goes into next.
He's sure to make the grade.

Rifle Club (3); Class Basketball (4).

Beaton, Clifford M., "Numb"

"Numb" wants to go to the U. of M. What he wants to do is undecided, but we know he will succeed.

Science Club (4); Picked Squad (2); Senior Chorus (4).

Beaton, Donald, "Don"

Big deeds from small deeds grow (with apologies to the original statement), and Don's willingness in every way foretells a grand future. Don has everything, including a taste for Virgil which places him above the average boy.

Class Basketball (1); Latin Club, Consul, (4); Dramatic Club (4); Dramatic Club Play "New Fires" (4); Senior Play (4); Senior Chorus; Oracle Board, Passing in Review, (4); Harvard Club Award (3); 3rd Honor Essay (4); R. O. T. C. (2, 3, 4); Captain Co. C (4); Parting Address (4); Officers' Club (4); National Honor Society.

Bell, Dorothy, "Dot, Dottie"

Dot's always been famous for her dancing and skating—but now we see that's she's taken up milking the cows. However, she expects to take a vacation from this interesting occupation long enough to attend college.

Debate Club (1, 2); Junior Chorus (3); Cheer leader (2, 3, 4); Senior Chorus (4); Expression (2).

Bemis, LeRoy B.

LeRoy thinks he will go to Business College. We wish him lots of luck.

Picked Squad (3); Second Lieutenant Officers' Club (4); Public Affairs Club (4); Senior Chorus (4).

Berg, Shirley

"Peppy" is the word which describes this young lady. She plans to go to the U. of M. next year where she will work for her B. A. degree. With your pep, Shirley, you should come through with flying colors.

Snapdragons (1); Debate Club (2); Latin Club (2, 3, 4); Junior Exhibition semi-finals; Senior Chorus (4); Public Affairs Club (4).

Blake, Robert W., "Bob"

"Bob", the boy of the skis, loves to see it snow. He is undecided, but hopes to continue school. We know he will surely ski to the top.

Blakney, Marie Eunice, "Me Me"

Marie is going to business school. She'd be a success in anything she tried.

Girl's Glee Club (1); Junior Chorus (3); Senior Chorus.

Blethen, Wesley Leroy, "Kike"

His loss to Bangor, we maintain
Will be another's future gain.

Senior Chorus (4).

Boardway, John

Unless we miss our guess, John will make a fine doctor. Quiet, friendly, and up in his studies all through high school is a good start on a medical career.

Singing (1, 2); R. O. T. C. (2, 3, 4); Company Sargent (4).

Bowden, Wallace, "Wally"

Commercial and industrial subjects catch Wally's eye.

Senior Chorus; National Honor Society (4); Commercial Club (4).

Bowers, Durant

This lad is known as a fine marksman; he also is interested in fishing, and photography. We wish him a lot of luck.

Supply Sergeant R. O. T. C.; Rifle Team (2); Rifle Club (2, 4); Senior Chorus.

Bowker, Grace Lenora, "Bowkie"

You'd never forget her, after you meet her. Best of wishes, Grace.

Class Basketball (2, 3, 4); Glee Club (4); Junior Chorus (3); Senior Chorus (4).

Clendenning, Douglas G., "Doug"

His pet ambition is to travel, and as he plans to be a salesman, maybe his ambition will be realized. Good luck, Doug!

Senior Chorus (4).

Cluff, Maurice John

Here is an ambitious fellow who will go high—he intends to take up airplane work.

Coady, Elizabeth Kathleen, "Bette"

"Bette" has us all "floored" in bookkeeping and maybe it's because that's her ambition, don't you think? Girls Basketball (1, 2); Snapdragons (1); National Honor Society.

Coffin, Richard, "Dick"

If you see a rather tall, hefty blond rushing around, you can be pretty sure it's "Dick". He's always at work for some sort of committee, whether it be in debating, acting, or assembly speaking. May success be yours, "Dick."

ESSAYS

"The Time Has Come—"

by Margaret Maxfield

"The time has come", the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things."

THESE familiar words of Lewis Carroll, although written in fun, hold a great deal of meaning for the high school senior of to-day, for graduation approaches. This event, graduation, is naturally very important to every senior. It means that, from this time on, he stands on his own feet. Whether or not he will succeed depends upon his acceptance or refusal of responsibility.

By far the most difficult problem which faces the prospective graduate is the choosing of a vocation. Whether he intends to continue his schooling, or whether he plans to undertake a job after graduation, the question remains. Of course, the selection of the right career is vital.

The actual choosing of a vocation may be based on several things. First and foremost, the career must be one in which the individual is very much interested. That extremely essential factor seems frequently to have been overlooked. But why should we neglect such an important issue? After all, from the time that we finish school until the end of our lives, most of us will spend nearly one-third of every day, occupied in our chosen profession. How foolish it would be to thoughtlessly select a career which we may later discover is not to our liking!

Frequently a girl will decide to take up nursing, perhaps for no particular reason except that she has no especial liking for any other pursuit. It may be that this girl is quick-tempered, untidy, has a bad memory, or dislikes contacts with people. Obviously, any one of these qualities would make her a rather poor nurse, yet the girl herself might not discover her mistake until much later, after she has spent a good deal of time in training.

It is a very good idea to think over your good and bad qualities, your likes and dislikes, before you decide definitely upon a profession. Thus you may prevent disappointment and save time and money—assets which are too valuable to waste.

Oftentimes young people are attracted to a particular occupation because of its air of glamor. For example, archaeology sounds so fascinating and unusual that one might overlook the long hard years of study that it involves. Then too, military or naval life sounds very thrilling, but a great deal of it is just plain drudgery. You should reflect carefully upon every phase of a vocation before you decide to take it for your own.

There are several guides for selecting the right career. First, consider your hobbies. Most people are interested in several, and it is very likely that at least one of them holds promise of becoming a successful life work. If you have such a hobby, it is well worth deliberation.

However, your hobbies may fail you. In that case, it should be helpful to read as much as possible about the careers which most appeal to you. But, no matter what method you employ, do not neglect the consideration of whether or not the profession is pleasing to you, now and throughout your life, and, just as essential, whether or not your own personal characteristics and qualities make that particular work suitable.

There is another matter to be considered in choosing a career, one which is of great importance to many young people to-day. This is the financial issue. If these young people desire any further education, and an increasingly large number do, they must work for it. It may be impossible for them to obtain the schooling necessary for certain vocations, but

And It's Called Humor

by Jane Mulvaney

THE familiar theory of humor is an amusing something that inspires laughter. But when laughter fades to a smile and that smile melts to tears, humor is eminent. Its meaning does not depend on verbal complications, but is supreme and presents a contemplation on life.

Through the ages humor has ever moved upward like a skyrocket leaving behind bright stars of laughter. Prehistoric man merely laughed whenever he felt good. He was the first humorist. Aristophanes always kept the Greeks in an uproar with his plays, but to everyone but the scholar, Aristophanes seems pointless. This is because humor can not be translated from one language or setting to another. The verbal effects upon which it depends are lost. Shakespeare inserted a scene or two of farce in his plays to amuse the pit-crowd, but certainly Shakespeare's greatness does not lie in these scenes. With the appearance of the Tatler and the Spectator, it became evident that there must be a point to humor.

Some of the things written in these periodicals would be acceptable for London's modern Punch. Humor began to climb to greatness and was waiting to be elevated to the level of art and literature in the Victorian period.

Mark Twain represents the highest reach of written humor in the 19th century. He was essentially a "technical humorist" with the ability to use sometimes rather startling word combinations. To him a knight in armor was a "man in hardware." His single sentences have their surprise and are often used as quotable quotes. Being endowed with a remarkable sense of humor and the ability to express himself well, Mark Twain thought it was part of his work to uplift the world with laughter. His Connecticut Yankee at the Court of King Arthur is probably his funniest and likewise his most artistic work. Most artistic, because it runs along burlesque lines without a break into seriousness or sentiment. It is purely parodistic art. But under the coverage of humor, Mark Twain—or rather, the true Samuel Clemens from Missouri, is slyly poking England. He is expelling his hatred against the things he despised most, aristocracy, inequality among mankind, privilege and superstition.

The story tells of a Yankee rendered unconscious by a blow on the head and waking up in 528 A. D. in King Arthur's England.

In this man is the spirit of Mark Twain himself. The words are the words of a Yankee, but the feelings are from Missouri. He puts modern England into an era gone by. He exposes the injustice of the period and indicates the way in which freedom and equality can enlighten and reform it.

America accepted the book eagerly and roared with laughter at the fun of it. But it passed over England like an unappreciated joke, for to Mark Twain the English church, every English lord, and every English custom was just as cruel and dominating as one thousand years before.

Although this book was extremely popular, Mark Twain, in Huckleberry Finn, had achieved his greatest heights five years before. For humor at its greatest is when one can look back upon sorrows and angers with understanding and forgiveness. The description of the ragged little boy and the runaway Nigger Jim floating down the broad Mississippi can not be read without the reader feeling the magic of the stillness and the curling mists and the way the outlines of the shores were smudged into greyness. In this book Mark

Ladies of the White House

by Gertrude Keeler

WITHOUT the effective and intelligent aid that "The Ladies of the White House" rendered, no administration would have been satisfactory. These Ladies were the power behind the throne, equal in social influence to the throne itself; a historical work bearing upon their lives is a valuable contribution to the nation's official history.

The first, who in our young republic bore the honor as a President's wife, is Martha Washington. She was not a beauty, but gentle and winning in her nature, and had those frank, engaging manners so captivating in American women. Mrs. Washington's crowning glory, "in the world's esteem," is the fact that she was the bosom companion of the "Father of His Country." To her, as a girl and woman, belonged beauty, accomplishments, and great sweetness of disposition.

As a wife, mother, and friend, she was worthy of respect, but only as the companion of Washington is her record of public interest. She was in nowise a student, hardly a regular reader, nor gifted with literary ability; but if stern necessity had forced her from her life of seclusion and luxury, hers would have been a career of active effort and goodness.

There have been many that have occupied the position of Mrs. Washington, but, in reality, no American, or, indeed, no woman of the earth, will ever be so exalted in the hearts of a nation as was she.

Dolly Madison, wife of the fourth president of the United States, was a fine, pretty, buxom dame, who had a smile and a pleasant word for everybody. Her warm heart beamed goodness from her expressive lips and lent a fascination to her frank, earnest face. The personal charms of the young lady, united as they were, with manners cordial, frank and gay, excited the admiration and awakened the kind feelings of all who came within their influence. She became a general favorite. Fortunately, hers was a disposition to rightfully appreciate the gifts of fortune and social consideration, and in accepting her bright future prospects, she determined to nourish the smothered generosity of her soul. When the power was given her to do good, she filled the measure of her life with the benedictions of humanity, and reigned in the affections of her friends without a rival.

To Mary Todd Lincoln more than to any other President's wife was the White House an ambition. She had ever aspired to reach it, and when it became her home, it was the gratification of the great desire of her life.

Mrs. Lincoln was not "greatly inclined to observe the requirements of her social position," and she thereby lost opportunities of advancing her husband's interests of which she perhaps was unaware. She was fond of society, pleased with excitement, and gratified to be among the gay and brilliant company which she found herself in. She would have made the White House, socially, what it was under other administrations, but that was impossible. She found herself surrounded on every side by people who were ready to exaggerate her shortcomings, find fault with her deportment on all occasions, and criticize her performance of all her semi-official duties. She will, however, be an object of interest to the American people as long as her memory lives, as the wife of the first martyr President.

Willingly or unwillingly, the First Lady points the way for thousands of American women and girls, and her standards, her example, will influence their mental outlook. Something of a responsibility, this, for her

Television: The Eye of the Future World

by Harlan Megquier

TELEVISION is not a modern idea as many have supposed. An attempt to invent a machine to see happenings far away was made by Nipkow in 1884. He patented a disc with holes formed in a spiral along the perimeter. He proposed to use it in connection with a selenium cell. His invention failed to work and the realization of television awaited the current amplifying devices and the vacuum tube.

In 1925, a machine was patented that was similar to Nipkow's disc. The holes along the perimeter developed electric currents of the same intensity as the light emitted by that part of the object covered and reproduced that part of the image at the receiving end.

Chief among the people responsible for the development of television were C. F. Jenkins, an American, and J. W. Baird, an Englishman.

The first long distance television signals were sent from New York to Washington by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The following year several radio broadcasting stations transmitted images of faces and simple objects to receiving sets.

Theatres publicly exhibited active images produced on screens six feet square; the voices being transmitted by radio.

Baird's television system was to place the revolving disc before photo-electric cells which are very sensitive to varying degrees of light and shadow. They have the power to change the rays into electrical currents of the same intensity and reproduce it on an optical receiving machine. The rapidly revolving disc has thirty equally spaced holes formed in spiral shape along its perimeter. An electric lamp of high candle power is focused to throw a pencil of light which traverses a certain part of the object as the disc revolves.

Each pencil of light has a slightly different path, thus each point of the object facing the machine is exposed momentarily and records with corresponding intensity on the sensitive cells. It is transmitted to the receiving unit by radio. The neon lamp flickers according to the strength of the current. The duplication is thrown on a screen which doesn't necessarily have to be very large. The discs on both the sending and receiving ends must run at the same rate of speed. The disc revolves in front of the neon lamp and the same degree of light is thrown on the screen as is given out by any one point at any one moment. This machine takes advantage of the continuity of human sight and forms an unbroken picture on the screen.

The Baird system has twelve and one half complete traverses of light per second which is seven hundred and fifty a minute.

The lamp at the transmitting end must be of great brilliancy and the scanning disc of such weight as to run with steadiness of a fly wheel.

Jenkins' television system uses a disc with forty-eight holes along its perimeter. These holes are fitted with lens that concentrate the rays from the lamp into a beam with less dispersion and with more intensity.

Another form of Jenkins' apparatus is with the scanner in the form of a drum with the holes punched helically in four complete rings. The rings are spaced one half inch apart, and the holes two inches apart. The holes are fitted with tiny rods of quartz. These rods carry the light from the center to the holes on the outside with practically no loss. The side of the revolving drum is turned toward the object whose image is to be transmitted.

The multi-channel television apparatus is

Hannibal Hamlin—Son of Maine

by Donald Beaton

ON AUGUST 27, 1809 was born in the little town of Paris Hill, Maine, one of the greatest statesmen this country has ever known, Hannibal Hamlin. This same year also gave birth to another great American, and one whose life was to be closely linked with that of Mr. Hamlin, Abraham Lincoln. As has been pointed out by many biographers, Hamlin's life was very similar to Mr. Lincoln's. Both men were born of humble parents, both were obliged to educate themselves, and both were extremely successful. At just about the same time Lincoln was clerking in a country store and studying by the light of the fireplace, Hamlin was toiling on his father's farm in the day and studying ponderous law-books way into the night. In later years, they continued to be very much alike. Both were strongly opposed to slavery, and it was through the combination of the efforts of these two men that the "scandalous state of affairs in the south" was righted.

Hamlin was obliged when still a mere youth to leave school and help his father on the farm. Still he continued studying, and at the age of twenty-four he was admitted to the bar, without having attended law school. The total extent of his study, that is supervised study, was the year he spent in the firm of two prominent Cumberland county lawyers. From this time on, Mr. Hamlin climbed the political ladder round by round. The people of Hampden, the town in which he practiced law, persuaded him to run for the state legislature. Needless to say, he was elected, and in 1836 he started out upon his long political career, which reached its height with his election as Vice-President in 1860 for Lincoln's first term.

After serving in the Maine legislature for five years, three of which he was speaker, Mr. Hamlin was sent to the House of Repre-tatives by his many friends and supporters. After spending four years in this body, he was elected to the Senate at the age of 38. Again in 1851 he was elected to this upper body. After this election he served seven years and then resigned to accept the office of governor of Maine. However, he saw the anti-slavery element in Congress needed him, and so, true statesman that he was, he dropped everything and had himself elected as his own successor. He was elected Vice President in 1860, senator in 1869, and was appointed Collector of the Port of Boston by President Johnson. After a year of this position, he resigned and after a brief rest was sent by President Garfield to serve as Minister in Spain. He served two years in this capacity, and then, feeling that his days of service were at an end, he resigned in 1883, going immediately to his beautiful home in Bangor, where he continued to live till his death in 1891.

Hannibal Hamlin, the man, was, I believe, endowed with one of the most honorable and patriotic characters of any of the leading men of American history. Whatever he thought was right, he did. Rather than do what he thought was wrong, he separated from his beloved Democratic party, going over to the weak Republicans. It was probably due to this fact that Mr. Hamlin was never President. When Lincoln was running for office the second time, he felt he needed the support of the War Democrats and, therefore, advised that Andrew Johnson be nominated for the position of Vice President. Naturally Hamlin was deeply hurt by this move, but, true patriot that he was, he took the blow with no outward sign of dissatisfaction and continued to serve his country as long as he was able.

The lighter side of this great man is also

War and the Maiming Death

by Hollis Russell

WE HAVE declared war, however feeble it has been, upon that dreadful and mysterious disease which has been called "The Maiming Death" because of its slow lingering death process. It is named Infantile Paralysis. Because of its terrible death toll we have declared war—crushing, inevitable, devastating, and revolutionary war—to forthwith stamp out this seemingly inexhaustible supply of this dreaded disease.

Up until three years ago there had not been a very strong army warring upon this disease. But, when President Roosevelt had his birthday in 1935 there was donated by the public $200,000 to laboratories for research regarding the source of this disease. The Infantile Paralysis Research Commission took this money and toiled wearily day and night in 14 laboratories in different parts of the country to find the question of, "Where does it begin" and "How can it be prevented?"

The research along the preventive line has formerly been quite slow because of the money involved being quite little for the cause. But, with the first contribution in 1935 the I. P. R. C. bought monkeys from India for $8.00 each and used them to work on and make experimental tests.

Dr. Park and his helpmate Dr. Brodie composed a weak solution of pulverized monkey's spinal cord and a weak solution of formaldehyde which he said would check and prevent catching Infantile Paralysis. Therefore, when the epidemic came out in North Carolina, injections were given to every other child as a protection and a test. This was given under close observation of the United States Public Health Service. Cooperation of the parents helped the experiment in July, but it became a failure. Although $75,000 had been spent to find out the truth there had been no actual result except that it definitely proved that Dr. Parke's solution was of no avail as a cure.

In 1936 Dr. Schultz of Stanford University, gave us hope with a new theory about Infantile Paralysis being in the body in places other than the blood stream. Science was used to discover that the only way that the nerves could be got at, if it was not through the blood stream, was through the nerves of smell in the nasal passage of the nose.

In California a man was found putting tannin into mice's noses so they could not catch a disease from a horse. Dr. Schultz seized upon this idea at once and tried it on monkeys and found that it would work for one week. Next report came from Washington that the Research Bureau there was using alum and picric acid to prevent the catching of this disease. Each of these would stop it for a month. Both were tried during the Alabama epidemic in 1936, but, found to be irritating to the body, they were used only until a better preventive was found.

At last a gleam of hope renewed our vigor when zinc sulfate was introduced and proven that it would definitely hinder and prevent Infantile Paralysis from being caught.

In the latter part of 1936 when zinc sulphate was discovered it was tested and found to be an absolute prevention for monkeys.

Now came the problem of making it work on humans.

Physicians found that by spraying the complete nerve ends with Zinc Sulphate the victim was immune to smell for a time, but also, he was protected from the disease. In children the time was one week, to one month for adults that have received the same amount of treatment. Then Dr. Pentecost brought the idea to light that if rubber catheter was added to

Neutrality in the United States

by Frances Northey

APPROACHING the subject of neutrality, as I do from the standpoint of a common citizen rather than an expert in international law, I find much misunderstanding and confusion in so far as the true meaning is concerned. They invariably believe that neutrality is complete isolation during war time, forgetting altogether that neutral nations take an active part in protecting their trade from both sides of the combat.

Only once in the history of our government has isolation been tried. This was by Thomas Jefferson, one of our greatest presidents, in a time when world affairs were not so confusing and complicated as they are today. As most of you know this proved unsuccessful and many authorities state that the bitter feeling excited was partly the cause of getting us into the War of 1812.

When the great masses of our people say they wish to remain neutral they are merely trying to say that they do not want war. Although to be exact they are not saying what they mean as neutrality is not a means of keeping out of war but solely "a policy which a country at peace adapts towards countries at war."

As for myself I believe that a neutral country is respected and that this policy will usually keep such a country out of conflict; nevertheless in 1917 our Neutrality Policy failed to keep us out. And in turn we were dragged into war as the result of protecting our merchant vessels against being attacked by foreign nations.

Congress passed another Neutrality Act in 1935 signed by President Roosevelt on August 31, of the same year, stating that exports of arms, ammunition, or implements of war from the United States to any country involved in conflict were prohibited and that the United States were not in any way to help belligerent countries, also that people traveling on vessels belonging to nations at war should do so at their own risk.

Early in October, 1935, when the Italo-Ethiopian war had really started, President Roosevelt was on a vacation cruising in southern waters, on a battleship. Nevertheless he hastened to issue a proclamation, which after referring to the situation between Ethiopia and Italy concluded with the following warning: "In these specific circumstances I desire it to be understood that any of our people who voluntarily engage in transactions of any character with either of the belligerents do so at their own risk."

It is believed that many people did not realize the momentous decision which lay hidden in this one sentence. That Freedom of the Seas had not only disappeared in fact but in name also; American trade with countries at war was no longer to enjoy the protection of the United States Government. The loss of what Jefferson had called "inalienable rights" and that Wilson had called "acknowledged rights" had been accepted by the public unnoticed and without complaint.

Today we have a similar problem to face, which is the war between China and Japan; this has caused much comment as to the policy Mr. Roosevelt is using. President Roosevelt in one of his fiercest speeches, after declaring that he hated war, went on to say that: "There must be positive endeavors to preserve peace. The peace loving nations must take a concerted action. There is no escape through mere isolation or neutrality."

Whether present or future there is much we can do to bring the policy which we would follow as a neutral into line with our real na-

ACTIVITIES

The Oracle Board

AS THE June issue of the Oracle goes to press, the 1937-38 Oracle Board says, "Adieu," and quietly takes its position with other past boards.

This year the Oracle has been decidedly different. Many new features such as Bette Barker's "Hobbies", the "Open Forum", "Who's Who Among the teachers", and the "Photographic Contest" have been introduced and have met with a great deal of success.

After glancing through the past numbers, we find many departments which will ever be present in our minds: "Passing In Review" by Barbara Savage and Donald Beaton . . . "Radio Row" by Kendall Cole . . . Jane Bradshaw's "Hokum" (the results of her underground wireless), "Activities" by Mary Nelson, Evelyn Walls and Langdon Freese . . . "Athletics" by Jane Mulvaney and Lewis Vafiades . . . Beatrice Norwood's and Jane Robinson's "Book Reviews" . . . "Pam" Richardson's "Cinemanalysis" . . . Jere-Bill Goessling's "Alumni" . . . Fellows' and King's "Personals", Dick Coffin's "Exchanges" and other masterpieces by board members.

Untold credit is due our faithful typists: Elizabeth Dolan, Evelyn Walls, Doris Nix, Phyllis Colpitts, Audrey Bell, Myrtle Wade. Without our capable artists, Anne Hanson, Beatrice Gleason, Norman DeCesere, Robert Fortier, Stanley Fletcher, Richard Morgrage, Lillian Libbey, Reginald Clark, we would not have had nearly so interesting a magazine.

Danny West and his business staff should and shall be duly recognized for their fine financial dealings which have put the Oracle over.

The above is the 1937-38 Oracle Board which with the kindly, helpful, and interesting work of Mrs. Charlotte Meinecke received First Honor Rating from the National Scholastic Press Association.

Debate Club

THE Debate Club's season has been this year one to be proud of. Two new coaches, Mr. Charles E. O'Connor and Miss Jessie Fraser, have taken up their new duties in expert style. Mr. Herbert L. Prescott has continued to direct activities, both varsity, debate, social, and money-raising. The junior-varsity team, coached this year by Mr. O'Connor, was given more actual interscholastic work than ever before, entering the Bowdoin, Edward Little, and Brewer tournaments. The third team, coached by Lewis Vafiades, showed well in the Brewer tournament. Mr. Prescott's varsity featured a successful out-of-state trip, and finished in the upper brackets in the Bates league. An aggregate of 74 pupils tried out for debates. The entertainment presentation of Mr. Richard Halliburton, internationally renowned adventure-seeker and writer, brought "big-time" to Bangor and both financial and reputation rewards to the Debate Club.

Two exhibition debates, one Club, one assembly, featured Frederic Leonard, Paul Kruse, Molly Kagan, John Webster, and Lewis Vafiades.

Rifle Club

SHOOTING pistol matches with high schools and colleges from Tampa, Florida, to Walla Walla, Washington, our Bangor High School team dropped only two matches out of twenty odd this season. The shooting started shortly after the school term commenced, when instructional firing was taken up for the benefit of the new members. Second and third year men "took over" and gave the greenhorns the trip "through the mill." Rogers High School of Newport, Rhode Island, was selected for the club's shakedown test. The boys emerged victoriously by a wide margin and systematically continued this practice of winning throughout the season.

Then came the time for shoulder to shoulder matches with rifle clubs within the state. The first of these matches was with the locally famous Penobscot Rifle and Pistol Association—a defeat for our club by 6 points. However, in a return bout our lads rallied to victory by 42 points, just to let the opposing club know that the first match was a mistake. A trip to Belfast to meet the Hiram Dale Gun Club followed their visit to Bangor. Our teams won both of these contests. The match for the Tampa Cup, a beautiful silver trophy with a rifleman perched atop, caused great enthusiasm among the Bangor boys, so much, in fact, that they won the cup for a year.

The high spot in this year's season was winning the Corps Area Match, which gives us the championship for the high school division of New England, and entitles the Rifle Club to a position in the National Corps Area Match, probably the most important match in the country for high school units.

Officers' Club

WHEN Colonel Snow called the officers of the R. O. T. C. Battalion out, he found the usual array of handsome, dashing, young men. Andrew Soloby was elevated to the position of president, and Lewis Vafiades was selected as secretary-treasurer.

Austin Keith, chairman of the general committee for the annual Military Ball, the officers' club's biggest event of the year (not counting inspection at Broadway Park), directed his original skit which was the most important lead-up for the Ball. Those having speaking parts were Austin Keith, Andrew Soloby, Donald Beaton, Eben Leavitt, Paul Hamm, Clifford West, Dick Coffin, and Albert Reynolds. Every one in the club did his duty by serving on some committee in an endeavor to make it the best dance of the year.

Public Affairs Club

AN INTERESTED and active group of students joined the Public Affairs Club this year. This club has completed its second season under the lively sponsorship of Miss Irene Cousins, head of the History Department. The following programs of the club included a variety of topics of current interest:

October 21—Discussion on Labor Problems	{ Sylvia Striar
	{ Robert Fortier
November 4—Sino-Japanese Question	{ Frederic Leonard
	{ Paul Kruse
	{ Robert Fortier
November 21—United States' Neutrality	{ Polly Goodwin
	{ Eben Leavitt
December 2—Travel Talk	Mr. Winfield Richmond
January 6—A visitor from Colorado	Miss Mary Jones
Congressional Problems	{ Barbara Libbey
	{ Barbara Savage
February 8—A Glimpse of Hawaii	Mr. Milton Windsor
March 8—The Republican Party of Today	Paul Ford
Reading; We, The People"	Joseph Goldberg
April 4—The Wonders of India	Miss Bernice Dunning

The activities of the year also included an inspection tour of the Bangor Daily Commercial office, and a candy sale for the Students' Community Chest Fund.

This year's officers were:

Earl Herrick	President	Barbara Savage	Vice-President
	Barbara Libbey		Secretary

 Fifth row: Dayson DeCourcy, Winthrop Duty, Stanley Fletcher, Franklin Keeler, Renfrew Yerxa, Barbara Finnegan, Winona Cole, Barbara Crocker.

Dramatic Club

THE Dramatic Club held its first meeting on November 3. An election was held, and the following officers named: Danforth West, president; Pauline Goodwin, vice-president; Bette Barker, secretary; Winthrop Duty, treasurer. Mary Carlisle was elected as program committee chairman. Miss Haney gave a resume of the play "New Fires" which was presented December 11. The play was a fine performance.

Mrs. Marion Bradshaw was guest speaker at the January meeting. Mrs. Bradshaw presented a most interesting comparison between the stage and the cinema.

The one act play "Patchwork Quilt" was presented at Brewer High School in the preliminaries of the state-wide one-act play contest, which was sponsored by the Principal's Association. Bangor High won first place. The cast then went to Belfast to compete with other preliminary winners.

The season was brought to a close with a rollicking comedy, "China Boy," the annual Senior play.

Commercial Club

THE Commercial Club is closing one of its most successful years since its organization three years ago.

We give the credit to Elizabeth Dolan, president, and to the cooperation of the Junior and Senior Commercial students.

The officers elected for the past year were:

Elizabeth Dolan.....	President
Eudolia Tinker.....	Vice-President
Evelyn Walls.....	Secretary
June Morrissey.....	Treasurer

The purpose of this club is to bring the Commercial students into contact with the business world—its men and organizations. This is arranged by having guest speakers at the club meetings, and by going on field trips to different well-known business establishments.

At the club meetings one member is in charge of the Forum and a speaker from the business world gives us a talk on true business experiences.

Our guest speakers for the year have been Mr. Bantam, who spoke on "Business in China"; Miss Rachel Connor, who gave us an interesting talk on her recent Caribbean trip; and Mr. Charles Bragg, 2nd, who gave a general business talk on the growth and development of N. H. Bragg & Sons.

Those in charge of the Forum have been Janet Bullard, Elizabeth Wise, Evelyn Walls, Eudolia Tinker, Elaine Estabrook, and Phyllis Colpitts.

Members of the club have gone on field trips to The Wrenn Bros. Stock Exchange, New Eng-

Girls' Athletic Honor Council

THROUGHOUT the year the council has been prominently busy. In the fall it had its customary booth at the football field with different committees in charge under Katherine Faulkingham, chairman. All sorts of candy, pop and hot dogs were sold to tempt the cheering fans. You probably saw the council girls at all the Injured Athletes' Fund dances. We were famous for our cider, doughnuts, Coco-cola and ice cream. About this same time the council girls were busy helping Miss McGuire with hockey at Little City Park. We were busy for many fall weeks forming class teams, and finally the All-Bangor squad. The closing event in the fall was the Hockey Party that was held in the High School gym. At this time four girls were taken into the council, Zilpha Nealey, Lois Vincent, Ruth Carlisle, and Barbara Hill.

During the basketball season, the council sold candy and ice cream at the City Hall, and the money made at the football and basketball booths was put in the treasury for new athletic equipment. Then the girls' basketball season was upon us, and we held two tournaments, first the intra-mural, then the inter-class. Throughout this season the council coached class teams, scored and timed and refereed, but the inter-class teams were refereed by Miss Evelyn Welch.

To wind up a successful basketball season, the council held the annual banquet at the Bangor House. Several after-dinner speakers were heard. Barbara Libbey was Toastmistress, Sylvia Striar spoke on Hockey, Virginia Simpson on Varsity Basketball, and Jane Mulvaney on under-class basketball. Awards were then given out by Dean Connor, and paved the way for the seniors' part in the program. In the ever-impressive candlelight ceremony, three girls were taken into the council: they were Mary Jones, Janet Bullard, and Helen Mehann. The girls were reminded of their duties and told the qualifications that they must live up to—namely, scholarship, athletics, dependability, sportsmanship, respect, and leadership. Other council awards then followed. Two girls, Virginia Simpson and Jane Mulvaney, were awarded second honor arm bands, and Barbara Savage was given third-honor arm band. This last is the greatest honor that a council girl can receive, and since the council was founded only seven girls have been awarded it.

Girls' Basketball

THIS year Miss McGuire introduced a new idea in Girl's Basketball. This method gives every girl that goes out for basketball a chance to play. First an intramural tournament was held in which six freshmen teams, six sophomore teams, four junior teams and two senior teams participated. Each team played two or more games and finally after about twenty-five games one Senior Team, one Junior Team, one Sophomore Team, one commercial Sophomore Team and two Freshmen Teams the Red and the Blue were left and were eligible to play in the Interclass Tournament. The teams were coached by the Seniors in the Girls' Athletic Honor Council and the following girls coached: Barbara Savage, Seniors, Jane Mulvaney, Juniors, Barbara Libbey, Sophomores, Gwendolyn Matchett, Commercial Sophomores, Louise Newman and Zilpha Nealey, Blue Freshmen, and Virginia Simpson and Sylvia Striar, Red Freshmen Teams.

The season began in earnest and the Seniors and the Blue Freshmen came out on top of the pile. Both the winning teams lost only one game all season, the Sophomores and the Juniors tied for second place, and the Red Freshmen and the Commercial Sophomores tied for third place. The Seniors and the Blue Frosh received their varsity B's and are considered the All-Bangor Basketball Team. The freshmen deserved everything they won and more, for this is the first time that a freshmen team has won varsity letters. Good sportsmanship and friendly rivalry prevailed throughout the games, and we can look back over a highly successful season.

Girls' Field Hockey

HOCKEY was one of the highlights in the field of girl's sports this year, and the season started off with a bang early in the fall. Practices were held at Little City Park, and all girls from all three upper classes appeared in shin guards and slacks, each one eager to whack that little white ball straight through the goal posts. As usual, it took some time to get limbered up into shape, but the tourney, when it began, was one of the most exciting ever played. Each class played the teams of the other two classes twice, making six games in all.

The Senior team, making the most wins, came out on top, and were presented with the cup at the Hockey party. From all three teams an All Bangor team was chosen to represent Bangor High School in Girls' Hockey.

The Homec Club

SEPTEMBER marked the opening of the fourth consecutive year of activities for the Homec Club. The officers elected for the school year were Beverly Nason, president; Doris McLaughlin, Secretary; Rachel Wessel, treasurer; Lida Chenery, recorder; Dorothy Cardin, member at large of the executive board; and the program committee, composed of Lola Dunivan, Helen Sedgeley, and Cynthia Tripp.

Special interest groups were formed including archery, knitting, dress-making, handcraft, doll-dressing for the News. The archery group is working toward a tournament to be held at the salmon pool May 22.

Through a sale of ice cream bars at the lunch room, the club was glad to be able to present the Community Chest with five dollars. Thank you for your patronage.

This year it was a privilege of the club to have two outside speakers, Dr. Forrest Ames spoke at the February meeting on the subject "X-Ray." To this meeting the club invited the girls of the Public Affairs group. Our other speaker was Miss Margaret Matson who spoke in a most interesting way on clothes as a vocation.

In the winter a skating party was enjoyed by fifteen members of the club and the club sponsors, Miss Ruth Crosby and Miss Margarette Lutz. Lunch was served on the bank of the Penobscot and much fun was had by all present.

At present the club is looking forward to two events. The Commercial Club has asked The Homec Club to serve them a banquet as we did last year, and the club has accepted the request with pleasure. The second event is the annual outing which for the second time will be on Cape Rozier, Maine. The outing closes the club year which, according to loyal club members, has been a happy and profitable one.

First row: Elise Titcomb, Lida Chenery, Charlene Shorey, Barbara Towle.
 Second row: Rachel Wessel, Helen Hayes, Hazel Giddings, Doris Titcomb, Marie Tsoulas.
 Third row: Miss Lutz, Mildred Murch, Kathleen Whidden, Marjorie Lord, Dorothy Morrill, Miss Crosby.
 Fourth row: Cynthia Tripp, Louise Faulkingham, Doris McLaughlin, Helen Sedgeley, Grace Alcester, Lola Dunivan, Donna Estabrook.

THE FEAST OF THE ROMANS

Members and guests of the Latin Club caught by the camera during the annual banquet.

Latin Club

THE Latin Club completes, with the customary Roman Banquet on May twenty-sixth, one of its most successful seasons. Part of this success is due to the fact that there was an exceptionally large and active number of members this year, totaling eighty-one.

During the year, there were several outstanding social events, including the ever-popular Saturnalia, which took place on December tenth, with all present participating in games, plays, and the receiving of gifts, and a party at the home of Franklin Eaton, which turned out to be a most hilarious affair. (Part of its success was undoubtedly due to the large boxes of colored popcorn which were passed around the room at frequent intervals).

However, not all the meetings were social. Once, Professor Clark of the Bangor Theological Seminary gave a very entertaining talk, illustrated by slides, on his trip up Mount Vesuvius. At another meeting the sophomores presented a humorous drama dealing with the sad tale of Mr. C. J. Caesar. On other occasions readings, discussions, and plays of every description were given.

The S. P. Q. R., issued semi-annually, was edited by a competent staff consisting of members representing the three classes.

Much of the humor in the meetings was due to that junior comedy team of Leavitt and Freese, although some of the sophomores show signs of following in their foot-steps. You will note that the seniors always preserved their dignity. (Well, most always).

All in all, this season of the Latin Club has been one for not only the seniors but for every member to look back upon with pleasure.

Band

THE Band has concluded an exceptionally colorful season under the direction of Mr. Devoe, faculty instructor, and Winthrop Duty, drum major.

The Band was called upon repeatedly for encores throughout the season during assemblies. It played every other week at the Friday assembly except for the last end of the year, when many special programs were put on, and it was concentrating its practice for the Dexter Festival.

Besides going to Dexter for the Carnival held there, the Band went to Portland for the football game bedecked in their new hats, which were the result of a candy sale. Other notable work was its performances at the basketball games, particularly at the tournament, and work at the annual R. O. T. C. inspection.

 Fifth row: John Ross, Albert Reynolds, Donald Graffam, Robert Lougee, Priscilla Ross.
 Sixth row: Lilian Libbey, Doris Twitchell, Priscilla Hardy, Doris Littlefield, Edith Barker, Harry Southard, Mr. Sprague, Maurice Orbeton, Lois Vincent.

Orchestra

ORCHESTRA members spent many weeks of long, hard rehearsal under the careful direction of Mr. Adelbert Sprague in preparation of the trip to Dexter May 14, during Annual Music Festival Week. Mr. Sprague chose for the selections: Le Tambourin, an Old French Dance, by Jean Philippe Rameau; Sarabande by C. Bohm, and the Russian Choral and Overture based on Tschaikowsky's Op. No. 24, and Russian Folk-Tunes.

Immediately after the trip to Dexter, Mr. Sprague started the orchestra rehearsing on the selections for Senior Chorus and the orchestral pieces to be played at graduation.

The orchestra has finished one of the most successful seasons in the past few years. This is probably due to the fact that at 3:30 on every Wednesday afternoon there was a much larger turnout for practice than has been witnessed for quite some time.

With such spirit behind him, Mr. Sprague carefully moulded the organization to its peak, which it reached at the Dexter Festival. Reinforced by the string section of the Junior Chorus, they took Dexter by storm, performing admirably at all times.

Louise Twist was chosen concert-mistress in the absence of Ellery Tuck, who recovered from his football injury in time to make the Dexter trip.

Snapdragons

THE Snapdragons held the first meeting on January 6, 1938, but under the faculty management of Miss Fraser they made up for lost time. At this meeting they elected the following officers:

President.....Gloria Redman
Vice-President.....Louine Kimball
Secretary-Treasurer.....Doris Emery

Many debates under the guidance of Miss Fraser have been held. The first was "Resolved: that girls are better student than boys." The affirmative team, composed of Frances Kogan, Alice Warren, and Alice White, won. Another debate was "Resolved: that Bangor movie theaters should be kept open on Sunday." The negative team, composed of Louine Kimball, Caroline Marshall, and Kathryn Clement, won. Kathryn Clement was considered the best speaker.

Marjorie Morris represented the Snapdragons in the Class Debates. She and her partner came in second place.

The final debate of the year took place on April 21, 1938, with the T. N. T. Club. It was won by the Snapdragons. This ended a season which was very successful in spite of the late start.

Girls' Glee Club

AT THE organization meeting of the Girls' Glee Club in the fall, the following slate of officers was elected.

President	Florence Hathaway
Vice-President	Winona Cole
Secretary	Betty Beal
Treasurer	Dorothy Bragdon

The Glee Club has had a busy and successful year under the leadership of Mrs. Huey. The first event of the season was a program presented over WLBZ in January, when Betty Beal and Jean Morse sang solos, and the chorus rendered well chosen selections. In February the club promoted the Masquerade Dance with a floor show, held in the high-school auditorium. Events of May included singing for an assembly program on May 13, the Annual Concert held in the City Hall, and the Dexter Music Festival. To top the year off right, the club plans to have an outing early in June, a happy ending for a happy season.

Boys' Glee Club

THE Boy's Glee Club, under the leadership of Mrs. Evangeline Hart Huey and Mrs. Edith B. Tewksbury, has enjoyed a highly successful season. Although the Glee Club hasn't been much in the public eye this year, the members have been very busy nevertheless. Most of the time this year was spent in preparing for the huge Eastern Maine State Music Festival which was held at Dexter this spring. This festival embraces schools within a radius of a hundred miles, and the selection of the leaders is a difficult task. The clubs are judged on all the fine points of music. The Glee Club did a very difficult number, comparable to college work: Jolly Roger and also another simpler selection, Down South. We should all feel very proud of the fine rating our group received at the festival this year.

There are 18 boys in the Glee Club this year, and the attendance at the meetings has been nearly perfect. Mrs. Huey considers this the best Boy's Glee Club she has worked with since her arrival at B. H. S.

The high spots of this year's activities were the radio program that the combined Glee Clubs participated in and the Masquerade Ball which was so ably managed by Bartlett Johnston and presided over by that genial master of ceremonies, William Jenkins.

 Third row: Raymond Jones, Arthur Norwood, Donald Fowler.

T. N. T.'s

PERHAPS the most ambitious program ever conducted by our Freshman debate squad was brought to a close at the final banquet of April 29th. Real pep was injected into the club this year by a first year coach, Mr. Charles O'Connor, and the fruits of this activity were reaped when the two Freshman clubs captured second place in the inter-class debates.

Topics discussed during the year were Resolved: that high schools students should buy all paper used in school, that the lethal gas chamber be used for all capital punishment, that most modern advertising is detrimental to the best interests of the American public, that the United States should keep out of all foreign affairs and that Bangor High School should be opened two nights a week as a social center. The speakers for these debates were chosen by lot, and the best debaters were selected by members of the club, who thus gained valuable experience. Nicholas Vafiades, Raymond Jones, and John Campbell were elected President, Vice-president, and Secretary, respectively. At one of the first meetings, the debaters this year have shown promise and the varsity team of 1941 bids fair to maintain Bangor's position in Maine forensic circles.

Basketball

A WELL-COACHED team, well-balanced, and well-supported"—thus have we heard our basketball team described this current season. With Coach "Eddie" Trowell at the helm, we saw the Rams, after a poor start, stage a brilliant comeback which lasted to the final game.

With such men as MacDonald, Clark, Sawyer, Burke, Downes, Freese, and Weinstein participating, with the coaching and backing of the athletic directors, with the aid of the cheerleaders, the band, and the student body, the Rams won nine out of fourteen games and scored 441 points to our opponents 360.

Summary:

Bangor lost to Winslow.....	18-30	Bangor beat Eastport.....	60-27
Bangor beat Presque Isle.....	38-18	Bangor beat Houlton.....	32-23
Bangor lost to Stearns.....	18-24	Bangor beat Brewer.....	25-23
Bangor lost to Old Town.....	22-26	Bangor lost to Stearns.....	30-37
Bangor beat John Bapst.....	26-21	Bangor beat John Bapst.....	38-34
Bangor beat Brewer.....	32-22	Bangor beat Dexter.....	32-23
Bangor beat Old Town.....	41-22	Bangor lost to Guilford.....	29-30

Can we soon forget the colorful spectacle in City Hall? Can we forget the thrills and chills as baskets were sunk right and left? Can we forget hoarse voices, the G. A. H. C. "salesladies", and the brilliant work of the cheerleaders? Not for many days, weeks, and years to come, for the memory is a dear one. To the many promising upperclassmen we offer our best wishes, for we know they will live up to the high standards set by Coach Trowell.

First row: Morrill, Chaison, Burke, Sawyer, McDonald, Clark, Jameson, Freese.
Second row: E. Trowell, Coach; Rand, Asst. Mgr.; Kelley, Giddings, Downes, Weinstein, Carson.

First row: Strout, Gleason, Chaison.

Second row: Weatherbee, Glencross, Blake, Sawyer, Jameson, J. Woodcock, Smythe, Morrill.

Third row: Ross (Manager), Work, A. Woodcock, Downes, Giddings, Clarke, Hardy, Braley, Elliott, Segal, (Manager).

Baseball

THIS spring a new coach was initiated into Bangor baseball, and the results were exceedingly gratifying. At the time of writing, the Rams had butted their way into second place with seven wins and two losses, after trampling Bar Harbor by a count of 10 to 1. Bellwether at present is Brewer, always formidable, but the margin of only one game is encouraging to Bangor fans. The prime characteristic of the Suomi-men this year seems to be teamplay. In many cases opposing batters have dusted the fences, or pitchers have kept our men on the safe side of the plate, only to have Bangor take advantage of a hit or misplay at the right moment and squeeze out a decision. Much credit is due Mr. Into Suomi, first-year mentor of a team which bids fair to present as imposing a front next year as this.

Football

A RECENT outing recently closed a very valuable spring football season, during which Coach Walter Ulmer observed "things" which caused him to speak optimistically concerning the fall schedule to come.

Many lettermen are graduating, leaving many vacant positions for ambitious young grid-ders. Among the graduates are backs Captain "Red" Smith, "Bud" Ross, Stanley Fletcher, and line-men James White, Richard Coffin, Hazen Coffin, Louis Skoufis, Robert MacDonald, Lewis Vafiades, William Jenkins, and William Bryce.

Football, unquestionably the greatest major sport in Bangor High School is receiving a firm foundation under the guidance of "Walt" Ulmer. The records in themselves are a tribute to him. In the past two years the Rams have won ten games compared to four losses, and have defeated every team on their schedule except the championship Portland team. This year's summary follows:

Brewer.....	0	Bangor.....	13
Waterville.....	19	Bangor.....	0
Rumford.....	19	Bangor.....	0
Bapst.....	0	Bangor.....	12
Winslow.....	0	Bangor.....	6
Cony High.....	12	Bangor.....	12
Portland.....	31	Bangor.....	0
Old Town.....	0	Bangor.....	14
Brewer.....	6	Bangor.....	14

Looking back over our years of high school, we take this opportunity to laud Coach Ulmer, known to all of us as a "good fellow", and endeared to all who have fought as members of his team.

When the leaves again begin to fall, and the dull "ping" of leather on leather resounds over Mary Snow field, we assure you, team, that the stands will not be lacking supporters from the class of 1938.

Track

FOR the years that track has been at Bangor High, it has always been recognized as a minor sport with small turn-outs and with a small amount of enthusiasm. However, this year track is well on its way to becoming a major sport.

The team wishes to express its gratitude to the City of Bangor for permitting them to use the facilities of Bass Park and the attending buildings for practice headquarters. The boys have also built a good jumping pit at the west end of the oval.

With only two or three lettermen, and equally as few veterans, Coach Charles E. O'Connor set to work to build a good track team for Bangor High School. At the first meeting some forty candidates turned out; this number soon diminished to twenty-five or thirty regularly attending "cinder-men." The results of meets already run show a fairly well balanced team with several outstanding performers.

During a driving rain on May tenth, Bangor met the Univ. of Maine Frosh, and four other schools, to emerge with a hard earned third place. On May thirteenth, also in a driving rain, Bangor returned with a second place in the meet with M. C. I. at Pittsfield.

Rain has prevented much practice, but at this writing, the team is looking forward to track meets at Winslow on May twentieth, and at the Univ. of Maine, the county meet, on May twenty-seventh, and the State meet at Portland on June fourth. So with much praise to Coach O'Connor and the men who have practiced long and hard, we hope they come through "on top" in the next three meets to come.

Tennis

TENNIS is fast coming into notice among the many sports at Bangor High. This year the team is starting off with five veterans as a nucleus. Mr. Frederick Pinkham, coach of tennis, is an able player, having won the Northern Penobscot Tournament in both singles and doubles for three consecutive years. He was Number 1 man on the Lincoln team and was captain for three years.

The schedule for this year is as follows:

Rockland at Bangor
 Rockland at Rockland
 Wassookeag School at Bangor
 Wassookeag School at Dexter
 Houlton at Bangor
 Houlton at Houlton.
 Colby J. V. at Waterville
 Colby J. V. at Bangor
 Machias at Machias
 Machias at Bangor

If the team has sufficient strength the boys will go to the state meet at Fort Fairfield.

Tennis should be of especial interest to high school students, as it is the only extra-curricular sport which is used to any extent in after-life, and the students on the tennis team are learning how to make pleasant use of future hours of leisure.

HOKUM

By Jane Bradshaw

HEAR YE! Hear ye! Being as how this is the last chance for the class of 1938 to be distinguished (!) by appearing in this year colyum, we hereby dedicate it to the venerable Seniors and Seniorit_s (thanks, Mimi) who will soon leave our emporium forever. Unless, of course, a few bright souls spoil my story and result as P.G.'s.

First comes the story of a gal named Savage, (guess all the puns on the subject have been used up) who should know better than to yell "Eyes front!" all over Orono. And can those U. boys give one the thrice over? Well, you tell 'em, Barb. . . You'd think some people would know better than to put it in writing, or were we misinformed, Jean? . . . Carl Spragg announces he wants a different woman—going snooty on us pal? . . . Somehow, speaking of Carl reminds one of Elaine Tippet, who is holding on to Red Smith with both hands. . . . Danny tells us that Evelyn is chasing cars—and how do you know so much about it, Mr. West? Howdy!

We wish to insert a notice, viz: Anyone desiring to communicate with Laurie Parkin, Esquire, will please call the Parkin homestead on West Broadway, and not bother some family way over on Union St. Catch on? . . . Jere-Bill is still isolated with Phil except for some Jeff on Sundays. . . How's the swimming, Carlisle? . . .

By the way, me darlin's, "should auld acquaintance be forgot?" etc. Especially:

Nelson and her legs.

Libbey and the Big Apple.

Beaton and his humor (?)

Mary Ellen and her free taxi service.

Burke and his grin.

Perry and her "4-A's".

Maxfield and her poems.

Giddings, the fourth man.

Rosie and his hot trumpet.

Fellows and her Packard.

Mulvaney and her eternal dieting.

Duty and his duty.

Johnson and Blake and their skiing.

Goodwin and her blind dates.

Coffin and his Latin.

Dot Bell and Gus.

Vafiades and his debating.

Dwinal and his eyelashes.

Newman and her motherly look.

Allan and his camp.

Ike Downes and the huge pedal extremities.

Rolnick and her giggle.

Bill Jenkins the one and only, and his cheer-ing.

Mary-Joy and her drawings.

Tommy Rice and his fresh air basketball tournaments.

Butterfield and his bow ties.

Eaton and his winning way.

DeCourcy and his fickleness.

Redman and his bowlegs.

The Class of '38.

Seems as the Military Ball, so aptly (O.K, it's a plug) run by Capt. Keith was some pow-wow. But just ask Rudman and Ramsdell—they can tell you all about it. . . Hi, Stan. Hi, Tish. . . And we're all very proud of our Honorary Major. My deah, etc., you may take a bow.

Wal, our brain (do we hear an echo?) is weary, and we've developed writer's cramp, so it's Love and Kisses and—Hokum!

"THE TIME HAS COME—"

that does not mean that there is no chance for them in that particular field. Very often it is possible to gradually work up to the desired position, or at least, one closely related to it. For instance, if a boy, even though he is quite talented, should not be able to take a course in art, he might, by beginning with small jobs such as making posters or working in textile design, be able to eventually attain his object. There is more than one road to success in any profession. In other words, lack of the necessary financial support is no great barrier, if you are really sufficiently interested in a vocation to make it your life work.

There is one more thing to be considered before you embark upon a career, and that is, the demand or lack of demand in various occupations. There are several fields of work which are quite over-crowded. A few examples are law, teaching, nursing, engineering, and social service work. To gain recognition in any one of these occupations, it is necessary to be out-standing. On the other hand, there are excellent opportunities for young people in such fields as aviation, scientific farming, forestry, small secretarial positions in diplomatic work, and many types of scientific study and experiment, providing, of course, that you are possessed of sufficient ability. In any position, however small and inconsequential it may seem, it is essential to have some ability, a great deal of perseverance, and willingness to work.

It is, naturally, important to consider all three points which I have mentioned, before deciding upon a career. The first, that of choosing an interesting and suitable vocation, is of the greatest consequence. Of course, many will find it necessary to consider the financial side, and also the demand in particular fields, although the latter is not extremely important. But do not, above all, select a vocation simply because it is the thing your parents want you to do, or because it is the occupation of some other member of your family. In as far as you can, be guided by your own hobbies, for, after all, a lifetime is a long time to spend in a pursuit which you find distasteful, tiresome, or actually abhorrent.

Graduation, for some high school seniors, simply means the end of one phase of education before embarking upon another. For such as these, the task of selecting a vocation may be deferred for a few years. Others, however, must enter upon a career immediately. But whichever is your course, you will have to make the decision eventually. Therefore, think carefully before you take the first step. Whatever life holds in store for you, happiness or sorrow, success or failure, depends upon your choice.

AND IT'S CALLED HUMOR

Twain presents in a delightful manner the thoughts and feelings of a little outcast, and the willingness to forgive and the docility of the Negro race. These two are wonderful characters as they drift in the mist discussing the marvels of the Universe. The simplicity of their explanations for the existence of the stars, brings about a smile wavering between tenderness and compassion. For the little boy is unconsciously making a searching indictment of our civilization.

But because of the humor and soft mist in which it lies, there is no evidence of bitterness and anger.

Such is humor at its greatest. Humor that can rob a man of wrath. Something that can present an outlook on life. Something that makes us realize the futility of hate and of anger. So life, often regarded from a sufficient distance dissolves into humor.

rest when tired, his solace in time of trouble.

She liked to go shopping herself, and wishing to do so in peace, she often avoided using the White House car. Often a respectful and interested crowd would gather and stand nearby, gazing their fill, missing no detail of the way in which the First Lady made her purchases; and Mrs. Coolidge, with her quick human sympathy, was always understanding and patient with this type of interest.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were cheerful and smiling, when they came for the last time from the elevator that carried them downstairs, with firm, elastic tread—their hearts lifted toward the tried and sacred hearth of Home.

At the White House, the new President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at an informal supper. The visitors were received without formality and were met at the front door by Mrs. Roosevelt herself.

Again at a big concert, we found tall, brown-haired Eleanor Roosevelt sitting there, smiling kindly, and waving her hand to old friends here and there throughout the audience.

The First Lady's sphere too, enlarges. Precedent is smashed right and left, tradition swept away. This President's wife speaks over the radio, writes for publication, expressing her views with great frankness on political matters—doing many things hitherto considered the province of the President.

Zest for life is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's most marked characteristic; but though she flies at the business of living with the dynamic energy and enthusiasm of her uncle, Teddy Roosevelt, she carries, nevertheless, a weighty burden. She has great courage and she needs it.

Much water has gone under the bridge since Franklin Roosevelt came to the Presidency, but even before this colorful administration there was a drama at the White House. At best, news writers must hurry—now they have burned much midnight oil to keep up with the lightning action of this Roosevelt Administration.

arranged by using a scanning disc over whose holes have been placed prisms of differing angles. The beams of light from the successive holes are thus diverted to different photo-electric cells. At the receiving end, corresponding prisms take the beams from several receiving lamps and change them to one common direction. The neon lamp used in this form of television has the same number of electrodes as there are channels used. A very serious trouble is experienced with this type machine in keeping the channels properly related to one another in the matter of the strength of the signals. If the light on any one channel is too strong or too weak the result is a strongly lined picture at the receiving end. Multi-channel television apparatus is practically limited to narrow angles of illumination by the disc. The point necessary for uniformity of the many electric circuits imposes increasing difficulties as the channels increase.

Experiments in color have been successful to a very promising degree. The method of scanning used is a narrow moving beam of light which is reflected by the object, picked up by the photo-electric cells, and disposed in three color groups. Each group is provided with its appropriate color filter for recording red, blue, green or whatever color the case may be. Each group is connected to separate communication channels which carry only one color vibration. On the receiving end, the light is from three television glow lamps, and each specific primary color is superposed by semi-transparent mirrors.

Although considerable progress has been made with television, the best sets are still crude as few small details are transmitted. The larger the area of the object is, the more acceptable are the results.

tells of one amusing event in Mr. Hamlin's life in his essay Two Vice Presidents. I believe this little anecdote does much to show the real man that Hamlin was. It seems that there was a certain representative who was quite noted for his dapper appearance. On the day in question, this little chap was even more dapper than usual, and each hair was greased so heavily that it lay in its position, straight and fast. The debate going on was particularly boring, and so Hamlin, who was dearly fond of a joke, sent a page with the compliments of the Speaker, to inform him that one of the hairs on the top of his head was out of place. At this the little man was most indignant; and no apology could appease him. The next year there was a vacancy in the Senate, and Mr. Hamlin came within one vote of being elected. He never could get this one vote, and his party had to take another man. The little member had had his revenge.

The latter years of Mr. Hamlin's life, which, as you all know, were passed in his stately home in this city, made up the happiest and most peaceful period he had ever known. Numerous visitors came to his beautiful home, and he was held in high esteem by all his fellow-citizens.

Death came peacefully July 4, 1891, and I believe that this day was, above all others, a most fitting day for the death of such a faithful servant of his country as Hannibal Hamlin, Son of Maine.

Zinc Sulphate people would be immune to Infantile Paralysis just as a vaccination would cause a person to be immune to Small-Pox.

Now that we have a preventive we need money to establish institutions for administering of it. This money will be used for paying for expert service to be given to the people during the predicted outbreak of Infantile Paralysis that has been predicted for the latter part of 1938. We will want to be ready to quell this disease as soon as there is any indication of it in the United States.

The money donated in 1935 has been consumed therefore more money is needed to replenish our supplies for our war on Infantile Paralysis. Lack of money is the one and only prevention to a complete domination over "The Maiming Death." Are we going to let that stop us from getting rid of the horrors of slow and torturing death? I, the public, and most of all the victims themselves say no. Therefore, we must give of our help no—matter how small of means or how insignificant—be cause that is the way that we will have to use to get sufficient money to carry on the great work that will be done to preserve our people and our nation.

tional interests. But no neutrality legislation can give us the advantage of isolation which in fact, does not exist. We are not a planet by ourselves but only a continent between two oceans no longer so wide as they were in the past when we fought in defense of our natural rights of trade and the lives of our citizens.

land Telephone Co., and the Bangor Daily News office. When this was written plans were being made for one or two more field trips.

Some of the highlights of the year have been a Prof. Quizz program conducted by Mr. Willis, a Christmas Party with Frances Chaison in charge, a typing contest, and a play contest between the Juniors and Seniors.

The Junior play won, so it will be presented in Assembly, and the Seniors will have to arrange the program and entertain the Juniors at the banquet which is to be held May 25.

We, the Commercial Club members, give our thanks and appreciation to Miss Moore, the Club's advisor, and to Mr. Willis, who have both helped us carry on this club.

Senior Banquet

Coming to make the walls of Bangor High School ring for the last time with their laughter, the seniors will fill the assembly hall for their final social get together, June 14. The boys clad in their best suits and the girls in their long flowing gowns will very ably take care of the food as each course is brought on, especially with chicken heading the list.

After the dishes are cleared away, Charles Redman, the faithful president of us seniors, determined to let no sadness creep into the program, will act as toastmaster. Barbara Savage, retiring with distinguished honor as president of the honor council, will give the welcome speech. Mary Nelson, a veteran of Junior Exhibition, giving the final au revoir for the girls, will sum up what a name each has made for herself. Bobby Blake, star baseball player, representing the boys, will tell what he knows about each. Billy Jenkins very ably will speak for boys' athletics, and Jane Mulvaney, athletic reporter for the Oracle, will speak for girls' athletics. This will conclude the speech making for the students.

Then! as an entirely new idea for the banquet, there will be dancing! Yes, I said dancing, and Paul Monaghan will furnish the music for the affair. So, with all this going on, there will be enough to keep the seniors busy for the night of June 14.
