SINGING OF CLASS ODE

CLASS ODE

By Josephine B. Clough

Music by Elizabeth B. Palmer

At the threshold of Life we are waiting—
We are ready to enter the fray
E'er the dawn of another morn rising
Shall herald the break of the day;
No longer in pathways well trodden—
As the days fleeting onward will glide—
We shall walk, sharing each other's burdens,
For tonight our ways must divide.

We would fain tarry longer together,
In the bonds of true friendship's fast chain;
But Life has her goal for us ever—
A quest which we all must attain.
Now—the future is calling us onward,
Ever onward to join in the fight
With the challenging hosts of the thousands
To further the triumph of Right.

Alas, it is come! our parting,
And the moment to bid sad goodbye.
In the years which before us are stretching
May we each towards that goal onward strive;
Though the path may perchance oft seem rocky
And obstacles oft block the way,
Till the hour of our triumphal day.
Still may we push forward to victory
