CLASS HYMN, - - by Emma Barker.

Through four sweet years together
We've roamed fair Science's land,
Each leaning on the other,
A happy joyous band.
Now time is swiftly bearing
To each her sep'rate way,
But in our hearts we're sharing
The love of many a day.

Though the dark cloud of sadness
Would fain our hearts beguile,
'Tis tinged with rays of gladness,
And through our tears we smile.
As flowers receive their sweetness
Alike from storm and sun,
So may our souls' repleteness
From joy and grief be won.

In Mem'ry's sacred places
Amid the fairest flow'rs
We'll keep the dear old fapes
Of all our school-day hours;
And though we miss with sorrow
Some links from out our chain,
In God's own glad To-morrow,
We'll all clasp hands again.
