ROSE M. DAVIS

MUSIC BY BATEMAN EDWARDS

Once more the world is glad ; for heav'nly June,
All fraught with fragrance, sunshine, song, and dew,
Smiles in the flow'ring vales, the cloudless sky,
The worn-out earth restored to youth anew.
For Nature, ages old, is fresh and fair
As if this day had dawned her hour of birth ;
Her great heart throbs exultant far and wide,
Her joy and beauty recreate the earth.
And we, who leave behind our childhood days
And find the parting ways of life so near,
Find highest hopes and aspirations stirred
In this fair time of sunshine and good cheer.
Oh classmates, friends, our playtime now is o'er ;
We cannot pass our lives 'mid June's fresh flow'rs,
But may our youthful hopes and high desires
Still stay with us in somber, joyless hours.
May each dare something worthy, without fear
Of toil or pain, of unrewarded strife,
Of all the world's derision and rude scorn—
May each live bravely to the end of life !
The hour is come ; we take our last farewell ;
Our varied paths will henceforth lie apart,
But may the ties of friendship true remain
And evermore be treasured in each heart.
