QUEEN OF BATTLE

I am the Infantry—QUEEN OF BATTLE! I meet the enemy face to face . . . close with him and destroy him. For two centuries, I have been the bulwark of our Nation's defense. I am the Infantry! Follow me!

Hardship . . . and glory, I have known. My bleeding feet stained the snow at Valley Forge. With Washington, I crossed the Delaware . . . tasted victory at Yorktown . . . and saw our Nation born.

At New Orleans, I fought beyond the hostile hour . . . discovered the fury of my long rifle . . . and came of age.

Westward, I moved with the covered wagon . . . marched with the empire across the plains . . . to far-flung outposts on the wild frontier.

I went with Scott to Vera Cruz . . . battled Santa Anna in the mountain passes . . . and climbed the high plateau. I planted my flag in the Plaza of Mexico City.

From Bull Run to Appomattox my blood ran red. I served two masters . . . the Blue and the Grey . . . and united again under my banner of blue.

I left these shores with the sinking of the Maine . . . led the charge up San Juan Hill . . . fought the Moro—and disease—in the Philippines.

Across the Rio Grande, I chased a wily villain.

At Chateau-Thierry, I went over the top. I stood like a rock on the Marne . . . cracked the Hindenburg line . . . broke the back of the Hun in the Argonne . . . and I didn't come back until it was "over, over there."

At Bataan and Corregidor, I took a beating . . . licked my wounds and fought back. I invaded Tunisia on the African shore . . . dug my nails into the sand at Anzio . . . and marched into Rome with a flower in my helmet.

The channel and the hedgerow could not hold me. I broke out of the "Bulge" . . . jumped the Rhine . . . and took the Heartland.

From island to island, I hopped the Pacific . . . hit the beaches . . . and chopped my way through swamp and jungle. I walked into the face of the Rising Sun.

In Pusan perimeter I gathered my strength . . . crossed the frozen Han . . . marched to the Yalu. Along the 38th parallel . . . and around the world, I make my stand.

Wherever brave men fight . . . and die, for freedom, you will find me. I am the bulwark of our Nation's defense. I am always ready . . . now, and forever. I am the Infantry—QUEEN OF BATTLE!

DEDICATION

SINCE ITS BIRTH in the heat of battle at Cedar Mountain in 1862, the 21st Infantry Gimlets have stood on history's crossroads, the scope of its battletasks paralleling the rise of America to world prominence: Antietam, Gettysburg; San Juan Hill, Santiago; the Zapote River in the Philippines; New Guinea, Leyte, Luzon; Osan and Naktong, Korea. From national scenes to world battlefields the Gimlets have carried the cause of freedom with honor.

Battle does not call us now, but hard work is always before us. As part of the strategic reserve of the Pacific, we stand watch and prepare ourselves for the day that the Gimlets may again be needed to protect our country's freedom once more.

To those who have gone before, many fulfilling our motto of DUTY with their lives; to those who now stand watch; and to those who will someday proudly bear the title of Gimlet, we dedicate this book.

Commanding General, 25th Inf. Div.

The 21st Infantry has had a distinguished history since its initial organization on 3 May 1861. Since that date, it has earned an outstanding reputation for its accomplishments in thirty-one campaigns in the Civil War, the Indian Wars, the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection, World War II and Korea.

The 2d Battle Group, 21st Infantry, joined the 25th Infantry Division when the Division was reorganized under the pentomic concept on 1 February 1957. Its members are continuing to add to the traditions of the regiment established by their forebears.

Commanding

The 21st Infantry Regiment has a long and noble history that goes back nearly 100 years. The Gimlets were organized in 1861 and have been in continuous existence since that time, participating in every major conflict to include World War II and Korea. Throughout the history of this fighting organization the Gimlets have established a reputation as one of the finest units in the United States Army.

In February 1957 the Gimlets returned to Hawaii after a 15-year absence. The cry "Bore, Brother, Bore" is once again heard on the playing fields of Schofield Barracks.

This motto, conceived back in 1921, symbolizes the will to gain victory in spite of all obstacles. This very same spirit, well demonstrated by the 21st Infantry on the battlefields of World War II and Korea, is the credo of the unit in accomplishing its training mission as part of the Strategic Reserve of the Pacific. The 2d Battle Group of the 21st Infantry is a battle-ready unit standing guard in the Pacific area, ready to answer its country's call.

You Gimlets of today are upholding well the traditions and standards of your predecessors set at Gettysburg, Santiago, Mindanao, New Guinea, and Osan. Wherever you go, no matter what unit colors you may serve under, you can be proud to have been a Gimlet, remembering that once a Gimlet always a Gimlet.

THE CIVIL WAR

The 21st Infantry Gimlets were first organized on 18 June 1861 as the 12th Infantry Regiment. Six years later the unit was officially designated as the 21st Infantry Regiment. The first order that created the unit left much work to be done. Officers were appointed and then required to recruit the men they would command.

A year later, on 24 May 1862, the unit was ordered to Washington. Still without arms, the unit was used to help the artillery in the defense of the Capital. However, this type of duty did not last long, for on 14 July the unit was ordered to Cedar Mountain. On 9 August the Regiment was ordered to deploy as skirmishers and cover the front of the 2nd Division. Less than 9,000 Union troops faced 20,000 Confederates. The order came to advance. A thousand yards across a creek and into the cornfield advanced the young unit. The Southerners soon found they were facing regulars and their left flank collapsed. The Regiment moved forward, but a Federal battery, mistakenly directed, poured a barrage of murderous fire upon the new unit. A young private sent to report the incident was wounded. Crawling, stumbling, and bleeding, he delivered a report of the mistake, thus becoming the first member of the Regiment to win the Congressional Medal of Honor. Later a Confederate Division which was in reserve moved into the attack and the Federal troops were forced to withdraw.

With the battle over, the young unit had received its baptism of fire.

Today the Regimental crest bears a cedar tree to commemorate the unit's action against the enemy.

The unit was then ordered to Antietam where it was held in reserve. At Fredericksburg it was assigned rear guard action. This mission completed, it then moved on to Chancellorsville where it sparked the attack. On to Gettysburg and more bloody fighting went the Regiment. Later, at Spotsylvania, the unit hit the nose of the famed Bloody Angle and then attacked the Confederate right flank.

It was at Petersburg that the Regiment last saw action in the bloody War Between the States... bloody indeed for the Gimlets, for throughout the war no other regular Army unit suffered as many battle casualties as this young unit.

The tattered battle flags were withdrawn from the fight, and on 21 September 1866 the unit was officially designated as the 21st Infantry Regiment.

THE INDIAN WARS

In May of 1869 a new and different type of fighting became known to the members of the 21st Infantry as it began its first campaign against the Indians. For the next 26 years the numerous Indian tribes throughout the West learned to fear and respect the 21st Infantry, and in 1895, though the fighting was over, the Indians breathed a sigh of relief as the 21st Infantry moved to New York's Plattsburg Barracks.

As it traveled West for the first time, the 21st became the first United States Army unit to cross the country by rail. It was at Promontory Point, in Utah, that the 21st Infantry band provided the music at the laying of the last spike of the transcontinental railroad, while the other members of the 21st Infantry witnessed the historic occasion.

After the ceremonies at Promontory Point the officers and enlisted men of the 21st Infantry experienced little rest and less joy in their campaigns against the Indians.

In Arizona they fought the Apaches for nearly seven years and covered over a thousand miles in their pursuit of the Nez Perce Indians. The 21st Infantry next defeated the Bannack Indians in the year 1878.

As the Indian tribes began to realize the futility of their fight and to accept the law of the white man, the 21st Infantry began its long trip back to the East.

The 21st Infantry Coat of Arms bears four arrows today in testimony of these campaigns against the Indians. The rattlesnake encircling the arrows is the Indian emblem of war.

THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR

Back to the East the 21st came. In May of 1892 the Regiment left Fort Sidney, Nebraska, for Fort Niagara, Fort Porter and Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y. "I" Company alone was left in Nebraska, for the entire Company was made up of Indians. Little by little the Regiment moved to Plattsburg Barracks, until in 1895 the entire Regiment was assembled for the first time in 26 years.

The start of the Spanish-American War called the 21st to arms once more. The entire Regiment left for Tampa, Florida, and soon found itself aboard ship with the 5th Corps—destination Cuba. Landing near Santiago, the Regiment fought not only the Spanish, but a continuous battle against the heat, terrain and the ever-present fever. In keeping with the Regimental traditions, units of the 21st advanced further against the enemy than did any other unit throughout the war.

The five-bastioned fort, the symbol of the Fifth Corps, appears on the Gimlets' crest to indicate the valor shown by the 21st during the Spanish-American War.

PHILIPPINE INSURRECTION AND WORLD WAR I

Rested and ready after the conflict in Cuba, the 21st was once more called on to fight for their country . . . this time in the Philippines. Expecting a rather pleasant garrison life, elements of the Regiment arrived at Luzon on 11 May 1899. Twenty-four hours later they were in the trenches facing fanatical guerrillas. The Regiment sent three different expeditions to the islands: one in 1899, one in 1905, and another in 1909. Each of these groups was successful in suppressing the guerrillas who continued to fight them.

Once again Infantrymen from the 21st had proven that . . . "God never made a finer soldier . . . than a Gimlet."

The Katipunan Sun on the 21st Infantry coat of arms symbolizes the part the Gimlets played in the Philippine Insurrection.

In 1909 the Regiment was reassigned to Vancouver Barracks, Washington, and remained there until World War I. During the First World War the Regiment was assigned the task of patrolling the Mexican Border and training troops. The 21st furnished 8,000 trained soldiers to units fighting in France; and was itself on orders for France when the Armistice was signed.

In 1921 the Regiment moved to Schofield Barracks, where it remained until World War II.

WORLD WAR II

The 21st Infantry participated in World War II from the opening battle, and was among the last of the Allied units to cease firing.

A member of the 24th Infantry Division, the unit was here at Schofield Barracks when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor. Suffering minor casualties when the billets were strafed, the Gimlets moved to the northern side of the Island and took up defensive positions. It was on that day the Gimlets began the long and rugged road through the Pacific and finally to Japan.

After extensive training in Hawaii and later Australia, on 22 April 1944, the 21st Infantry spearheaded the assault at Hanahmerah Bay in New Guinea. With the Hollandia Airdrome, a powerful Japanese airbase, as its objective, the 21st pushed inland over trails which were impassable for vehicles and was the first unit to reach the airbase. It was captured in five days.

In October 1944, at the focal point of the U. S. invasion of the Philippines on Leyte, the 21st Infantry was instrumental in the capture of the Island of Pancan off the southern tip of Leyte. The capture of this island was strategically important because it enabled the Panoan Straits to be kept open for use by PT boats operating against enemy shipping.

In early November of that same year the 21st took part in the action against strong enemy forces at Pinamopon on Leyte. It was here the Regiment fought the terrible battle of Breakneck Ridge. This battle was a costly one for the Gimlets and resulted in the loss of 630 men, plus 135 injured from other causes. At Breakneck Ridge the 21st accounted for 1,770 Japanese dead. For the part the 21st played in the battle it was awarded the Philippine Presidential Unit Citation.

Following Breakneck Ridge the 21st was attached to the West Visayan Task Force on Mindoro, another island in the Philippines. Throughout the months of 1945 and until the Japanese surrender the unit was engaged in continuous combat.

In October of 1945 the 21st Infantry arrived in Japan for occupation duties where it remained until the Korean Conflict.

FIRST IN KOREA

In 1950 the Gimlets were still in Japan. Little did these men realize that their lives would change in a few short months, for the 21st was to be called to battle again . . . this time in Korea.

The Korean chapter of Gimlet history began on 25 June 1950, when North Korean Communist forces launched an overwhelming attack across the 38th parallel aimed at the occupation of Seoul and the subjugation of all South Korea.

President Truman's historic decision to use American forces placed the responsibility on the 24th Division in Japan. The 24th in turn called on the Gimlets to become the first American unit to face the Korean Communists.

On 2 July 1950, a small band of Gimlets found themselves debarking from troop planes at the Korean port of Pusan. Assembled were Able Company, Baker Company, a platoon of 4.2 inch mortars from Heavy Mortar Battery, a 75mm recoilless rifle section from Mike Company, and Able Battery of the 52nd Field Artillery Battalion. This force, under the command of Lt. Col. Charles B. Smith, immediately entrained and headed north for Taejon.

When "Task Force Smith" reached Taejon, they loaded onto trucks and pushed north. Near Osan contact seemed imminent, so the force unloaded and set up positions in the neighboring hills.

On 5 July the Communists struck. Led by 33 Russian T-34 tanks, a force of infantry estimated at well over division strength tried to push the small task force from their positions. Our 2.36 inch rocket launchers failed to penetrate the Russian tanks. The artillery's 105mm Howitzers were depressed point-blank in order to stop the advancing armor. Enemy infantry units moved around the small task force's position, and Lt. Col. Smith realized he must withdraw or lose his entire command. Fighting the Communist forces every step of the way the exhausted task force finally reached the main body of the 21st some 12 miles to the south. It had accomplished its mission. Task Force Smith had delayed an entire division for eight long hours. The Gimlets' heroic stand gave the Americans time to bring more troops from Japan.

During the days and weeks that followed, the 21st was used to cover the withdrawal of the 24th Division to the Pusan Perimeter. Here within the perimeter the Gimlets withstood repeated fanatic attacks.

On 19 September the Regiment struck back. Attacking to the north the fighting men of the 21st were well above the 38th parallel by the middle of October. By November the Gimlets had succeeded in reaching Sonchon, a scant 17 miles from the Yalu River.

The intervention of the Chinese Communist forces forced the Gimlets back towards the south. The Regiment, still part of the 24th Division, fought delaying actions which allowed the main Allied force to withdraw and consolidate defensive positions just south of Seoul.

The Gimlets fought the Communists near the Han River in the months that followed. Eventually a stalemate developed lasting until the end of hostilities during the summer of 1953.

In January that same year the Regiment returned to Japan and a well-earned life of comparative ease. A year and a half later they returned to Korea to guard Communist prisoners at Koje-do Island.

In 1954 the Regiment moved near Seoul where they guarded the ancient invasion route from the north towards Seoul. Here they stayed, a constant reminder to the Communists that aggression in this area would be met by a strong, aggressive group who had rightfully earned the title of "First in Korea."

On 1 February 1957 the 2d Combat Group, 21st Infantry, became a unit of the 25th Infantry Division. Since that time the members of the unit have worked constantly to insure that they will be ready if once again our country calls.

The "Gimlets" today stand ready to meet aggression with the same determination and devotion to duty that has been a part of the 21st Infantry since its birth.

THE GIMLETS TODAY

Since the reorganization of the 21st Infantry at Schofield Barracks in 1957 we have worked hard to become a highly trained combat unit of the strategic reserve of the Pacific. An annual cycle of rugged training keeps us in constant readiness. For six months we trained; first as a squad, then a platoon, and finally as a company. We concentrated on making ourselves expert infantrymen. Fire team leaders, AR men and riflemen became proficient in their jobs. Even on this level, teamwork is important and it is here in the squad that we learned the fundamentals. It is the squad, multiplied a 100 times over, that makes us a solid Infantry Unit.

As the year continues so does our training, and from squad level we advanced to platoon training at the rugged hills of Kahuku. Ask any of us how it feels to run up hill 904! We became winded and tired but we learned the necessity of coordinating with others. Once again the importance of teamwork, along with the importance of keeping in top physical condition, was impressed upon us.

The days in the field with our squads and platoons prepared us for company training. We were tested two companies at a time. We dug, walked, attacked and then dug again. Our commanders had the opportunity to coordinate with other companies, and our Battle Group Staff Sections had a chance to work operationally in the field.

We learned that mobility and the modern concepts of war take additional knowledge. We learned that by helicopter and armored personnel carriers we can move quickly and still be in condition to fight when we reach our objective. We climbed aboard APC's and bounced through training areas, climbed into 'copters and went over terrain impassable by other vehicles. We came to know and appreciate the Army's mobile transportation devices.

We moved to the big island of Hawaii and combined the knowledge and skills we previously acquired as we took the official Army Battle Group Training Test. We trained over dust, puus and lava rock, and went away tired and dirty; but were happy when our group walked off with honors. The plane trip back . . . flowers in hand . . . was a welcome relief for all.

From the lava rock of Pohakuloa we went to the wilds of East Range and tropical training. We learned how to survive in the tropics and became familiar with the skills needed to sustain combat operations in the jungle.

Off we go to the firing ranges where each of us qualifies with his individual and crew-served weapons. We know well the sound of "ready on the right" and some of us have even seen Maggie's red drawers. Firing every weapon from the .45 caliber pistol to the 90mm gun on the SPAT we look happily for the orders that tell us we have fired expert.

The Command Inspection, the Command Maintenance Inspection, and I. G. Inspection bring memories of late hours and tedious care of our equipment.

Annually we go on an alert status. Should the need arise, we draw ammo and rations and are ready to move at a moment's notice.

We end the year with a test to see which of us are Expert Infantrymen and those of us who qualify to wear the blue Expert Infantry Badge can be proud of our accomplishment.

The Gimlet Stick...

The 21st Infantry Gimlets is the only Regiment in the United States Army that is authorized to incorporate its nickname into its official title. The nickname itself is derived from the stone-masons' gimlet, a tool with a grooved shank and a screw point used for boring holes in rock.

The Regiment acquired the nickname at Schofield Barracks in 1921 as a result of the efforts of twenty athletes led by Pfc. Eugene Riley. These men organized a club known as the "Royal Gimlet Clan." This group supported the Regimental athletic teams which completely dominated the service teams in major sports. It was not long until the word Gimlet was applied to all members of the 21st, and since that time the soldiers of the Regiment have proudly borne the title. The Gimlet motto, "Bore, Brother, Bore," exemplifies the Regiment's desire to excel in the fields of battle, service and sports.

Chief Gimlet
and the "Big Stick"

It is traditional for the officers and non-commissioned officers of the Regiment to carry, in the fashion of a swagger stick, a shiny chrome-plated Gimlet stick as the mark of a Gimlet soldier.

The "Granddaddy of all Gimlet sticks," a full 57 inches long, was presented to the 21st Infantry in Korea by the First Royal Sussex Regiment as a token of the Royal Sussex' esteem for the Gimlets.

This token from our brothers in arms is kept in the office of the "Chief Gimlet" and is passed down from one commander to another.

ATHLETICS

Athletics play an important part in our garrison life. The 21st Infantry has implemented into its rugged training schedule an excellent athletic program.

Company-level sports of softball, rifle, volleyball, basketball, pistol are enjoyed by all of us during the entire year. Our better athletes have the opportunity to compete in the division-level sports program.

The Gimlets have a sporting history of which they can well be proud. The Regiment dominated the old Hawaiian Division in all major sports. Athletic trophies were won by the Regiment here at Schofield and in Japan and Korea.

In 1957 we fielded nine teams on the division level and managed to gain our only championship in middleweight boxing. In baseball, basketball, softball and volleyball we landed in eighth place. Our teams have consistently improved since that time. Coached by Lt. Donald Holleder, an All-American end from West Point, the 1958 Gimlet grid-iron team was co-champs with the 35th.

Our marksmanship program has also come a long way. Our rifle team ended its first season in last place—this year our team was the winner of the Division M-1 match.

The Gimlets are presently a threat in all division-level sports. We of the Gimlets look to the day in the very near future when our teams will once again dominate the sports scene at Schofield.

HIGHLIGHTS IN HAWAII

1 February 1957—2d Combat Group, 21st Infantry Gimlets activated from elements of the 14th, 27th and 35th Infantry Regiments.

July 1958—Tank-Infantry Demonstration for Gen I D White

August 1958—Mortar Battery tested and receives highest score in Division. They receive Division Artillery Commander's trophy and distinctive guidon.

September 1958—Highest score in Division on the Battle Group Army Training Test.

October 1958—Nineteen officers and men receive the Expert Infantry Badge. This was the highest number qualified by any Battle Group in the Division.

November 1958—Command Maintenance Inspection—All rifle companies receive a "superior" rating. Overall Battle Group rating "superior."

Battle Group Football Team Division Runner-up.

December 1958—Gimlet Santa Claus presents funds, clothing and toys from members of the Battle Group to children at the Waimano Home for Retarded Children. Orphans visit companies of the Group for tour and Christmas dinner.

January 1959—Vander Heide Trophy presented to top company of the year for the first time. Trophy presented to A Co.

February 1959—Runner-up in Division M-I match. Fifteen medals awarded to individuals in the Battle Group.

March 1959—Command Inspection—General Theimer comments, "Organization outstandingly well prepared."

June 1959—Battle Group Army Training Test, the results have not been received. The Ass't Div. Commander compliments the Battle Group on its outstanding performances.

July 1959—Gimlet Chapel dedicated.

Battle Group Commander's Trophy to outstanding NCO of the Battle Group.

Chapel Activities

Chap (Maj) Wilson, A

Chap (Capt) Meyer, C

The religious program conducted by our Chaplains gives each member of the group the opportunity to worship God as he sees fit. Our two Chaplains are kept busy helping those of us who call on them and supervising their activities. This year, because of increased interest, it was felt the Gimlets needed a Chapel of their own. Interested personnel pitched in on their own time and constructed the beautiful Chapel we now enjoy. The thanks of all of us go to the dedicated Chaplains who live to serve each and every one of us, and to those members of the Group who gave their time so that we might have our own place of worship.

Gimlet Poem

On old Virginia's border, with the struggle at its worst.

Volunteers were in disorder, covered by the Twenty-first.

Bearded soldiers, firm and ready though their ranks with shell were torn,

Held the column always steady—and our Regiment was born.

War whoops echoed o'er the prairie and the braves were on the loose.

Predecessors gruff and hairy, fought to cook the Redskin's goose.

Arizona and Wyoming, and the burning desert's thirst, Sioux and Blackfeet, wildly roaming—

All have known the Twenty-first.

At San Juan Hill in '98 Rough Riders claimed their share;

They reached the blockhouse rather late—and found the Gimlets there.

Now-a-days seem merely trifles, but the old timers reached their goal.

Underneath a nipa thatch, in the doby land of dreams,

In the early nineteen-hundreds, in the far-off Philippines,

Insurrecto and the Moro fought with skill and fought with guts;

But always, to their sorrow, we'd occupy their huts.

Schofield Barracks in Hawaii, back in happy yesteryears,

Flowed with gin and flowed with rye, and varieties of beers.

But the Japanese betrayal of an international trust, Made the Gimlets sadly wail that the place was dry as dust.

The Japs saw the Gimlets by Hollandia's sunny shore;

Soon they scattered into driblets—then they never saw no more.

They died from lack of victuals, nad they died from too much fever;

I hate to talk in riddles, but we got no beefsteaks either.

In Leyte there's a valley, and beyond that stands a ridge.

Looking o'er the Cogon gullies and a narrow bridge; In the histories of tomorrow, when the last of us have died

Our successors—future Gimlets—will think of it with pride.

There's Pinawan, and there's Daro, and the red-dened Sulu Sea.

There's Mindoro, Marindugue, and Lubang victory. And the sodden shores of Luzon, where our cannon company,

Furnished fire power and a wallop for the Airborne Infantry.

Nibbling rice some few years later, listening the samisen,

Gimlets stationed in old Nippon were alerted once again;

For, exploding o'er the border into South Korea's hills,

Ruthless Reds of three aggressors swarmed a-loaded to the gills.

As the land of Morning Calm became the Land of Frightful Night,

Task Force Smith of hardy Gimlets was the first to stand and fight.

To take hard blows and land some, and beat back the Commies cursed.

They had forty rounds and muskets, and they held—that Twenty-first.

Now all that stands behind us, as we look ahead once more.

Let our thoughts once more remind us of those who went before.

Protect us in the action, when Red hardware starts to burst.

"Give us forty rounds and muskets"—here goes the Twenty-first.

Oh, a thousand moons have faded; many thousand Gimlets, too,

Have passed on their muskets for their Duty they did do.

To the Gimlets who come after, doing Duty, best or worst—

If you want it done the right way, then you want the Twenty-first.
